Briand Requested To Form Cabinet, But Asks for Time

Painleve Offered Post Before Briand, but Turned Down Premiership From Doumergue.

BRIAND MAY GIVE CABINET TUESDAY

Success in Forming Ministry Depends Largely Upon Whether Socialists Give Him Support.

BRIAND DOUBTFUL OF ACCEPTING JOB

Paris, April 12.—"I am too old to attempt to dance on eggs," Aristide Briand said after a late conference tonight with Paul Painleve. "I must have solid foundation before accepting the premiership."

Apparently, Briand is determined not to form a cabinet unless the socialists will permit one or more of their party to become members of the ministry. The socialists are loth to repudiate their traditional policy of nonparticipation in any ministry in which they cannot have every portfolio. If they must join a coalition government, the socialists are understood to prefer that Painleve rather than Briand or anyone else should head it.

BY JOHN O'BRIEN.

Paris, April 12.—Aristide Briand, eight times premier and the man who led France for 18 months during the war, is trying to form a government to succeed the cabinet of the radical socialist, Edouard Herriot. Briand is a socialist-republican.

Following a conference with President Doumergue at the Elysee Palace, at which he was offered the premiership, Briand said that he had asked for a little time before giving a decisive answer. Despite this, his acceptance really is final, and it is not unlikely that a cabinet list will be virtually completed Monday. Owing to the hesitancy of the socialists to permit members of their party to sit in a cabinet with representatives of other parties, announcement of the cabinet probably will be held up until Tuesday, when the socialists will have caucused.

Painleve Refused Job.

Briand accepted the task of building a cabinet after Paul Painleve, president of the chamber of deputies, had refused. Painleve told Doumergue that Briand or Rene Renoult would be most likely to succeed in the difficult task of choosing a cabinet which could retain the left bloc and support in the chamber and simultaneously conciliate the conservative senate.

Following his conference with Doumergue, Briand discussed the situation with Herriot.

"I hope to give the president a favorable reply by Monday noon," he said after leaving the Elysee. "I told him that, in view of the serious situation, I wanted to get all possible cooperation. I think I must have the support of a full majority. Every group in the majority ought to assume part of the responsibilities of the government."

Depends Upon Socialists.

The socialists would support Briand, but they do not want to enter his cabinet. During a conference with the party executives, Briand asked whether some socialists would accept portfolios, and a meeting of the national council of the party will answer the question. However, it is believed that Briand has obtained sufficient information during his conferences with socialist leaders to know whether he can count on their collaboration.

Although Senator Francois-Marsal and former Premier Poincare, in whose cabinet Francois-Marsal served as minister of finance, caused Herriot's defeat in the senate by their combined attack, the victor's spoils do not go to them. Briand has opposed Poincare during virtually all his political life. It was Poincare who forced Briand from power in 1922 and succeeded him as premier.

The following tentative cabinet list, including socialists, already is being discussed in political circles.

FRENCH SITUATION CAUSING CONCERN AT WASHINGTON

Suggestions for International Assistance or Evolution of Kind of Dawes Plan Increase.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.

Washington, April 12.—France's financial difficulties are causing keen concern here, not only because payment of her $4,000,000,000 war debt is involved, but because a collapse of the franc and national bankruptcy would have grave consequences.

Suggestions for international assistance or evolution of some sort of a Dawes plan for France, reported last week, are increasing in unofficial quarters. Whether any such concerted action ever will come about is highly questionable, but agitation for this course may serve the same effect by compelling France to approximate some balance between her revenues and expenditures as the alternative to an international trusteeship by creditor nations who would finally force some such program in any event.

Suggestion of Harvey.

One suggestion of this nature comes from George Harvey, former ambassador to Great Britain, who had a large share in negotiations which led to the funding of the British debt. Harvey, in an editorial in the Washington Post, says:

"At the root of the difficulties in France is the refusal of the French peasants to pay heavier taxes. The suggestions that a Dawes plan be evolved for the salvation of France has already been mad. If France cannot obtain loans abroad and cannot increase taxes at home, the probabilities would favor the evolution of an international plan for the salvation of the country."

Such suggestions are purely unofficial and are of value only because they reveal the trend of thought among well-informed persons. Officials, because of the grave responsibilities involved, are careful to avoid discussion of the French financial situation, fearing that anything they might say would complicate matters abroad. This policy of silence has been imposed by President Coolidge and may be expected to continue for some time.

Expect Short Administration.

Opinion seems general here that any premier named at this critical time will be able to stand only for a short time, especially if he attempts to do anything really vital toward putting France again on the way to solvency.

Officials here would regard it as the height of impropriety to presume at this time to give France unsolicited advice. But there is no deviation from the administration's insistence that all foreign debts be paid.

"Terms and conditions may have to conform to differences in the financial abilities of the countries concerned, but the principle that each country should meet its obligation admits of no differences and is of universal application," President Coolidge said in his last message to congress. That may be accepted as the fixed attitude of this administration.

LEGION CONTINUES DRIVE FOR FUNDS

Fort McPherson Soldiers Contribute $300 — Elks' Club Sends in Contribution of $50.

With approximately $4,000 needed to complete Atlanta's quota of $25,000 for the care of orphans and disabled veterans of the world war, American Legion workers will redouble their efforts today, and expect to have the entire amount in hand within a short time.

A number of subscriptions made since Saturday noon were reported Sunday.

The largest individual gift was made by the L. W. Rogers Grocery company, which contributed $250 to memorialize the names of five Fulton county's dead war heroes, Lieutenant Calvin George, Lieutenant Roy L. Bauer, Lieutenant Benjamin M. Rambo, Private Aaron Cohen and Private Howard Curtis.

Soldiers Will Help.

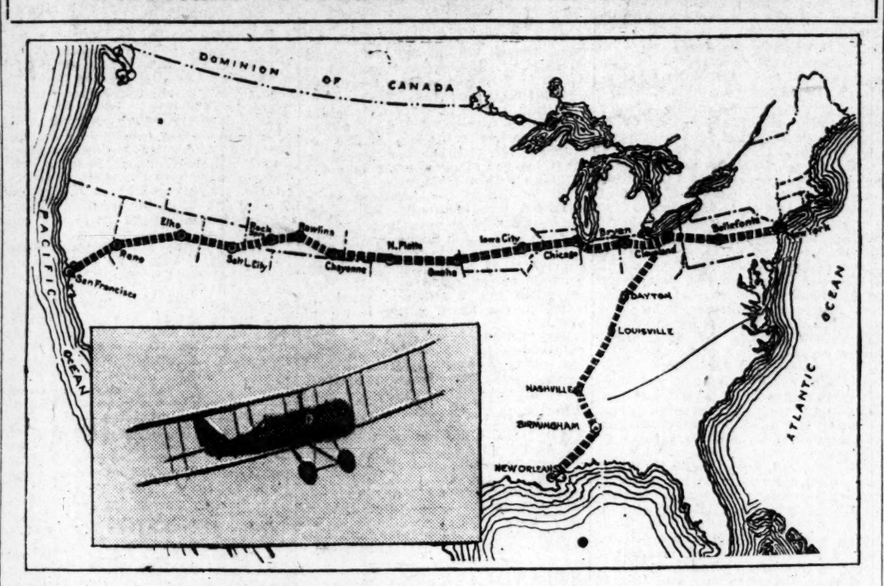

Fort McPherson soldiers of the Twenty-second United States infantry pledged $300 and as much more as they can raise this summer through baseball games held at the fort, athletic meets, and boxing tournaments to be conducted at Camp McClellan when the regiment is assembled there. Dr. R. C. Eve and Lieutenant Morrison addressed the men at the fort and reported their contribution.

The Elks' club sent a contribution of $50, which makes $600 reported since Saturday noon.

Conditions over the state are most

Cleveland-to-New Orleans Air Mail Looms

The air mail service is considering establishing a new cross-country aerial mail route from Cleveland to New Orleans, via Dayton, Ohio,; Louisville, Ky.; Nashville, Tenn., and Birmingham, Ala. Cleveland is the headquarters of the eastern division of the New York-San Francisco air mail. The map shows how the country would be served by air mail by the two lines.

GEORGIA ENGINEER AND WIFE FOUND DEAD IN CLEVELAND

Mrs. H. B. P. Wrenn Believed To Have Killed Husband and Then Committed Suicide.

Cleveland, April 12.—H. B. P. Wrenn, assistant electrical engineer of the Cleveland Union Terminals company, and his wife, Mrs. Isabel Norma Wrenn, were found dead in their home in Lakewood, a suburb, today. Mrs. Wrenn is believed to have shot and killed her husband and then killed herself Friday. They came here from New York about three years ago.

The bodies were found by the police, who broke in a door after a janitor notified them the lights had been burning continuously. Whenn was seated at the kitchen table with a Friday morning newspaper and his breakfast untouched before him. He was shot in the temple and below the heart. A third bullet went wild.

Mrs. Wrenn's body, with a bullet wound in the head, was lying on the bed. The revolver, with four empty cartridges, was found beside her body.

Because of the condition of the bodies, physicians believe that eight or ten hours elapsed between the shootings. An unmailed letter written by Mrs. Wrenn to her sister, Mrs. A. A. Poole, New York, indicated she was jealous of her husband, but admitted she had no reason to be.

Wrenn was a native of Georgia. He returned Thursday night from a week's business trip in Erie.

In her letter to Mrs. Poole, Mrs. Wrenn referred to "love that is fading" and to Wrenn being a "handsome man, easy to love," but "I have no reason to suspect him," appeared further down.

On the envelope Mrs. Wrenn had scribbled:

"Now he will frame me up no more or blast no more lives. I did this for my country's sake and for my family and his children."

Wrenn is said to have two grown children by a former wife. Mrs. Wrenn also had been married before, but had no children. He was 50 years old and she 51, and they had been married more than two years.

Wrenn, considered an expert, was in charge of electrification of the Van Sweringens' $60,000,000 new Union Station here. He did similar work in connection with the electric railway lines running into Grand Central terminal in New York.

Matador King Bids Farewell To Gory Arena

1,093rd Bull Falls Before Retiring Gaona Amid Bedlam.

Mexico City, April 12.—Counting the four bulls he killed Sunday, Gaona, the matador, is entitled to 1,093 notches on his sword scabbard, so after dispatching the fourth bull before a noisy Easter crowd Gaona went into retirement to meditate on a life of bull fighting.

A hysterical throng bade him adieu. Flowers, confetti and serpentines showered down on the bewildered Gaona who stood in the great arena as the last of his long string of bulls was towed out of sight. The animal skidded out on its side, raking a little furrow with its nether horn.

The band played while the frenzied crowd whooped its appreciation of the mighty matador.

Gaona is returning to Spain at once. He will sail without attendant and probably not more than a couple of bands and a parade will see him off, as is becoming a modest matador, and a retired one at that.

Suicide Victim Found in Park Is Identified

Inquest Over Body of Alabama Man Will Be Held Today.

The body of the man who was found with his throat cut Saturday morning, near the Ansley Park golf course by Dr. Wallace W. Rogers, pastor of Trinity Methodist church, Sunday afternoon was identified as T. H. Garrett, from Forney, Ala. Police stated Sunday that their investigation showed that Garrett killed himself. No cause for the act has been learned.

The identification was made by W. M. Payne, section foreman for the Southern Railway company, who lives at Armour's station. Payne viewed the body at the chapel of H. M. Patterson & Son and identified it as being the man who was given lodging in the Payne home Friday night.

"Garrett told me that he had a son employed by the Rock Run Wood company, at Piedmont, Ala., and that he himself came from Alabama," Payne told the undertakers.

When the Atlanian went to work Saturday morning, he left Garrett at his home, he said. "Garrett was to do some odd jobs about the place for me, but that was the last I heard of him until my visit to your chapel this afternoon," Payne said to the embalmers.

Coroner Paul Donehoo announced that he will hold an investigation today. The undertakers stated that as soon as the inquest has been held the body will be sent to Forney for interment. Garrett is survived by his widow and four sons, W. E., W. L. and George Garrett, all of Forney, and Ira Garrett, of Rome, Ga.

$1,500,000 IS GIVEN RED CROSS TO HELP VICTIMS OF STORM

Washington, April 12.—More than $1,500,000 for the permanent rehabilitation of the tornado-swept area in the middle west has been received by the American Red Cross through its chapters over the country.

An announcement today from headquarters here said all kinds of contributions were represented, from the large donations of industrial concerns down to the widow's mite.

AIR MAIL ROUTES, LINKING BIG CITIES, PROPOSED BY NEW

Birmingham, Nashville, Louisville Would Be Included on One of Routes, Under Consideration.

Washington, April 12.—Opening of a number of new air mail routes—probably this summer—linking some of the more important cities, is being considered by Postmaster General New under authority of a law passed by the last congress.

Regulations under which contracts will be let for extensions have been approved by postal officials and will be issued shortly.

Inauguration of an over-night air mail between New York and Chicago, which is a major item in the program, will be within a month or so, the first step in the expansion of the world's greatest regular air route.

With the beginning of the new fiscal year July 1, funds will become available under which contracts can be made for carrying mail by airplanes or airships on any routes selected and numerous organizations already have asked for extension of the service to their cities. Only such routes as post-office officials believe can be operated without loss to contractors, however, will be considered in the opening up of these new avenues of communication.

Routes Proposed.

Extensions now under consideration include routes between:

New York and Boston; Chicago and St. Louis; Los Angeles and Salt Lake City; Elko, Nev., and Pasco, Wash.; Minneapolis, St. Paul and New Orleans via St. Louis, and Memphis; Pittsburg and New Orleans, and Chicago and New Orleans via Indianapolis, Louisville, Nashville and Birmingham.

The New York-Boston route probably will be arranged to make connections with the trans-continental service and the new Chicago-New York night service. The Chicago-St Louis service likewise would be a feeder of the overnight New York-Chicago service. The Los Angeles-Salt Lake City and the Elko-Pasco routes would connect with the transcontinental service.

The Elko-Pasco route would serve the cities of the northwest, the air mail being handled to and from Pasco by the railway mail service for Port-

Constitution's Pathfinding Car Leaves Atlanta Today

First Step Is Taken To Provide Accurate Road Information Service for 1925.

The Constitution's promise to motorists of the country to provide a complete, accurate road information service this year, without charge or obligation of any kind, will begin to take form today.

One of the pathfinding cars of The Constitution will leave Atlanta this morning to compile the first of five road guides, which will embrace practically all territory east of the Mississippi river and south of the Great Lakes.

This trip will take the pathfinder over the territory south and southwest of Atlanta to the Gulf of Mexico and west to the Mississippi river.

The best routes will be selected to resorts and cities in this section and the trip probably will require four weeks' time.

Information collected on this trip will be published in a booklet which will be distributed free at The Constitution's road information bureau and at practically every point along the routes selected for travel this year. This folder will serve to route motorists from Atlanta to points in the territory covered, and during the winter months will be used by a great number of tourists from the east to points in the west, including California.

It also will serve to route motorists from this big section of the southeast to Atlanta and points north and east of Atlanta, including southern mountain resorts. The information bureau of The Constitution has been rated by tourists for several years as the best east of the Mississippi river, and it is the purpose of The Constitution to put it in first place among all bureaus in the entire country.

Will Aid Motorists.

The work is prompted by the desire of this paper to assist all visiting and local motorists in reaching any desired points east of the Mississippi river, and through outside distribution of the folders to make it easy and convenient for motorists from other sections to reach any portion of the southeast.

The Constitution's bureau is more than five years old, and has been operated largely at the expense of this paper, in the belief that it will contribute to a more rapid upbuilding of the southeast.

The work of this bureau in the past several years has proven its value both to the motorists and business interests of this section, aside from the fact that it has brought many prospective settlers and investors to this section.

LITTLE GIRL IS KILLED AND SIX OTHERS HURT IN AUTO-TRAIN CRASH

Thousands Throng Churches In Celebration of Easter

:: BRIGHT COLORS MARK FASHION PARADE ::

BY L. O. MOSELEY.

Dame Fashion vied with the sentiment of Easter Sunday in bespangled throngs which made up Atlanta's annual observance of the resurrection of Christ. Gaudily-dressed women and men dandies strolled nonchalantly under beaming skies, while others sought the altars of their respective churches and there bowed in humble homage to the spirit of the day.

Atlanta's weather has not been more ideal for many years, the sunshine being unmarred by a single cloud throughout the day. Atlanta's church attendance was never larger, many pastors declared Sunday night.

Easter services were of two-fold meaning, marking alike the observance of the day, more than 19 centuries ago, when immortal spirit conquered mortal confines, and also the closing of the city's greatest series of revival services in nearly 100 churches.

Christian peoples turned to worship Sunday as its most inspiring day of faith. In all lands wherever the story of resurrection of Christ has been unfolded to believing ears, thoughts turned back the pages of Time and dwelt for a period in reverence at the empty tomb in Joseph's Garden. In Atlanta the day marked the close of the greatest revival series in the history of the city, hundreds of members being added to church rolls during the two-weeks services.

Peachtree street, traditional stage of Atlanta's Easter pageant, was a conglomeration of shades, hues, colors—balloon-bottomed trousers, a sprinkling of spats—and short and long skirts. A liberal display of modes and colors which will rule feminine America, sartorically, for the spring and summer months, brought a general craning of necks, sighs and "ahs"—the younger, or sport models, being a mingling and blending of gay colors and ultra-fashionable cuts. MOTHER QUIZZED IN POISON DEATHS ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

Policewoman Frustrates Effort of Woman To Strangle Herself With Bedclothes in Cell.

Chicago, April 12.—An unsuccessful attempt at suicide was made today by Mrs. Anna Cunningham, of Gary, Indiana, it was announced by police officials, who are holding her in temporary custody, pending investigation of the death of her husband and four children in the past seven years and the serious illness of another son.

The son, David, is declared by Coroner Oscar Wolff, of Cook county, Illinois, to be suffering arsenic poisoning.

Mrs. Cunningham collapsed yesterday after making statements to police that she had "always kept quantities of arsenic in the house for rat poison." She was in a state of coma in the county hospital for several hours, and on recovering refused to answer any questions.

Tried to Strangle Self.

Policewoman Agnes Whalen, who was assigned to guard her, reported that Mrs. Cunningham attempted to strangle herself this afternoon with bed clothes which she twisted so tightly around her neck that her breath was shut off. The policewoman frustrated the attempt after a struggle, she said, and an extra officer was placed in the room for the rest of the day.

Preparations were completed today for removing Mrs. Cunningham to Lake county, Indiana, tomorrow for questioning by state's attorneys.

Meanwhile, arrangements were being made for exhuming the bodies of the five members of the Cunningham family which lie buried in a cemetery near Valparaiso Indiana. Decision to exhume the bodies was made after an all-day conference between Coroner Wolff and Coroner A. O. Dobbins, of Porter county, Indiana.

The decision resulted from admissions made by Mrs. Cunningham and the finding of large quantities of arsenic fluids taken from the body of David Cunningham, who is ill at a hospital here.

5 Deaths in Five Years.

The deaths of the Cunninghams came at intervals. The father, David, Sr., died July 2, 1918, and those of a daughter and three sons following one by one up to August 28, 1923.

Prompt medical attention alone saved David, Jr., from death, physicians at the hospital said today. He became sick six weeks ago after eating his lunch, he told physicians, and has felt ill every time after eating meals since. His mother prepared all his meals.

The mental condition of Mrs. Cunningham was brought into question by statements of George Arnold and Mrs. C. R. Williams, of Chicago, her nephew and niece. She has appeared mentally subnormal at times since the death of her husband, they said, and apparently had been getting worse.

Coroner Wolff examined contents of the Cunningham house yesterday and declared he found "enough poison in the house to kill a whole town of people."

FURTHER MESSAGE HEARD FROM SHIP IN SARGASSO SEA

New York, April 12.—Additional proof of the safety of the Arcturus, the ship bearing the scientific expedition headed by William Beebe, was provided today when the General Independent Wireless company from its station at East Moriches, L. I., established direct radio connection with the vessel, now off the Galapagos islands.

Assurances that all was well on board were given in a message from the Arcturus, which blamed heavy static conditions for having cut off the ship from radio communication with the rest of the world for 12 days.

MEMPHIS OFFICER NABS MURDERESS WHO ESCAPED JAIL

Woman Sawed Out of Little Rock Prison, Jumped Twenty Feet to Ground, Left in Taxi.

Memphis, Tenn., April 12.—Mrs. Winona Green, under life sentence for the killing of her husband's parents, who escaped from the county jail at Little Rock, Ark., last night, was captured today walking along Missouri Pacific railroad tracks near Union Station here.

Little Rock officers arrived late today, and started back to the Arkansas capital by automobile with their prisoner. Confirmation of the report of Mrs. Green's capture here was withheld until arrival of the Arkansas officers.

Mrs. Green's rearrest was due to over-cautiousness on her part. She alighted from a Missouri Pacific railroad train in the Union Station here this morning, but, fearing that she would be arrested if she went out through the main entrance of the station, she strolled back into the yards.

Patrolman N. A. English saw her, and approached to ask her why she was walking on the tracks. Believing he knew who she was, the woman disclosed her identity to him.

Mrs. Green, who confessed the slaying of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Green, her husband's parents, and who pleaded insanity, sawed through three iron shutters at the county jail in Little Rock last night and dropped 20 feet to the ground. She declared that she rode in a taxicab from Little Rock to Kensett, Ark., and later boarded a train for Memphis.

Mrs. Green had been confined in the Pulaski county jail for several

NEW TRIAL TODAY FOR TAYLOR BOYS

Jones and Bloodworth Face New Trial at Butler After Having Eluded Gallows Three Times.

Butler, Ga., April 12.—(Special.) Interest centers here in the opening Monday in Taylor superior court of the second trial of Willie Jones and Gervis Bloodworth, sentenced to hang for the death in December, 1923, of H. F. Underwood.

The boys were granted a new trial Friday by Judge Eschol Graham, of McRae, on the plea that one of the trial jurors is related to the wife of the slain man.

It is announced that Judge M. J. Yeomans will preside at the trial here Monday, Judge L. F. McLaughlin, of the Chattahoochee circuit, being disqualified.

It is expected that when the case is called, motion for change of venue will be filed, and if denied by Judge Yeomans, the venue plea may be appealed to the state supreme court.

Three times have the youths been sentenced to hang and as many times have they eluded the gallows, by court procedure.

Jones and Bloodworth were convicted in January, 1924, of the murder of Howard F. Underwood, a local salesman. It was brought out at the trial that the boys accosted the salesman, who was driving his automobile.

THREE AUTOISTS ARE NEAR DEATH AT CITY HOSPITAL

Martha Alice Grant, 4 Years Old, Instantly Killed at Crossing, 12 Miles From Atlanta.

AUTOMOBILE STRUCK BY CENTRAL TRAIN

Mrs. C. A. Peacock, Sr., Mrs. C. A. Peacock, Jr., and Charney T. Peacock in Critical Condition.

Martha Alice Grant, 4-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Clifford Grant, 545 Capitol avenue, is dead and six others are injured—three perhaps fatally—as the result of an accident about 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon at "Rock Gap," when their sedan was struck by Central of Georgian train No. 1, Macon to Atlanta. The scene of the crash is near Forrest Park, Ga., which is about 12 miles from Atlanta.

Those probably fatally injured are: Mrs. C. A. Peacock, Sr., grandmother of the little girl who was killed.

Other victims are C. A. Peacock, Sr., C. A. Peacock, Jr., and John Clifford Grant, Jr., 7-year-old brother of the little girl who was killed.

Accident At Crossing.

Both train and auto were coming to Atlanta at the time of the crash, which occurred at what is known as a blind crossing. Tracks at "Rock Gap" are laid through a cut and, according to autoists, it is very difficult to see the approach of a train.

C. A. Peacock, Jr., who was driving the automobile stated Sunday night that he stopped his machine when he approached the crossing, but that he could not hear nor see a train.

Police officers and railroad officials are investigating the case. No statement was issued by the Central Sunday night, but one probably will be made today.

Rushed To Atlanta.

After the wreck the victims were placed on the Central train and rushed to Atlanta. Two ambulances from Greenberg & Bond met the train at the Terminal station and carried the victims to the Atlanta and Grady hospitals. The body of the little girl was taken to the undertaking establishment of Greenberg & Bond.

The auto party was returning to Atlanta from an outing at Morrow, Ga. Mr. and Mrs. Grant, parents of the little girl, had intended making the trip but decided at the last minute to remain at home, on account of the poor health of Mrs. Grant. It was several hours after the death of her child, before physicians informed the mother.

Leg Is Fractured.

Mrs. Peacock, Jr., suffered a fractured skull, a broken leg and serious injuries about the chest and stomach. She is believed to be hurt internally, and surgeons entertain but little hopes for her recovery.

Mrs. Peacock, Sr., was injured internally and probably is suffering concussion of the brain, although surgeons stated they did not believe her skull was fractured.

Four-year-old Charney Taylor Peacock has a fractured skull and several ribs crushed. He also was badly bruised about the shoulders and legs.

Peacock's Condition.

The elder Mr. Peacock is in a serious condition. It is believed that he is injured internally.

Both injured boys are at the Grady hospital. The Grant boy has a severe wound in the back of the head, and was bruised about the body.

Mr. and Mrs. Peacock, Sr., and

Auto Is Stolen While Owner
:: ROLE OF GOOD SAMARITAN COSTLY ::
Seeks Parents of Lost Child

BY BILL MAHONEY.

The role of Good Samaritan is laudable and it gives much satisfaction in a deed well done. But there are times when it proves an expensive indulgence.

The amiable motorist offers a ride to the weary pedestrian and is rewarded with a gun thrust in his side and a hand in his pocket.

The motherly housewife feeds the hungry-looking tramp that knocks at her door. An hour later she recovers consciousness and tells police of a burglarized home.

And so—ad infinitum!

The Good Samaritan frequently pays whether the object of his service be the calculating genius or the mere, innocent cause.

Gilbert Little, who lives in the Bonaventure Arms apartments, 541 Ponce de Leon avenue, planned a long automobile drive with his family for Easter Sunday.

They were just climbing into their machine, shortly after 2 o'clock in the afternoon, when a 4-year-old tot stumbled up to Mr. Little and grasped his hand.

"I want my mamma," he wailed, the tears streaming down his face.

He didn't know his mamma's name and he didn't know where he lived, and festivities for the afternoon were indefinitely postponed until his parents could be located.

Picking the child up in his arms, Mr. Little proceeded to his apartment and notified the police—forgetting the keys to his machine.

It was some half hour later when he remembered the unlocked car, and rushed out of his apartment, signaling frantically for the elevator. He waited as long as patience would permit, and sped down the steps.

The car was gone!

So was the elevator boy!

Mr. Little again appealed to the police and, becoming impatient, went to the station house himself.

It was 3 o'clock when he notified officers of the missing machine. It was 4 o'clock when he stepped from the street car in front of the police station—just in time to see Officers Chambers and Hale driving his car into the police lot with an amply manacled elevator boy.

But Charlie Drummond, as the negro was dubbed some 25 years ago, was not alone in his trip with the officers.

With him were five negro girls—all arrayed in Easter style of the flashiest choice. One of them was weeping profusely and loudly protesting the uninvited company of the bluecoats. The remaining four ranged between the stoically silent and the effusively indifferent.

In the meantime the mother of the child retrieved the foundling through efforts of the police.

Mr. Little again drives his machine, but a new elevator boy operates the up-and-down car at Bonaventure Arms.

months, awaiting action of the supreme court on an appeal, following her conviction. She was sentenced to life imprisonment at the Arkansas state farm for women.

Reasons for Murder.

In the alleged confession which resulted in her conviction, Mrs. Green claimed that Mrs. Robert Green owed her money and that she killed Robert Green, a Missouri Pacific switchman, when he refused to pay her. Green was killed August 17, 1924. Mrs. Robert Green was killed at Red Fork, Okla., late in September. Her daughter-in-law claimed self defense in this instance.

The woman refused to disclose to police where she got the saw she used in her escape of Saturday night.

The departure of the Arkansas officers with Mrs. Green was delayed for two hours tonight when two other women prisoners, who were being released on bail, took Mrs. Green's clothing while the latter was bathing at the city jail. Police, after a search, found the two women, rearrested them and recovered Mrs. Green's wardrobe. The party left for Little Rock shortly after 8 o'clock.

TOLD TAXICAB DRIVER SISTER HAD ELOPED.

Little Rock, Ark., April 12.—Telling a story of how she was chasing a man who had eloped with her 17-year-old sister, Mrs. Winona Green, under life sentence for murder, induced a taxicab driver to take her to Kensett, Ark., last night, it was learned today when police questioned J. T. Davis, a taxicab driver. Davis said the woman appeared at the taxicab office a block from the county jail shortly after 10 o'clock last night, and within a few minutes after she had sawed her way out.

The woman, the driver said, was limping and told him that she had sprained her ankle two weeks ago.

According to Davis, the woman had about $40 in $10 bills. She paid him $29.60 for taking her to Kensett and bought a ticket. She had told Davis that letters she had read indicated the eloping couple intended to go to Memphis and from there to New Orleans. Davis said he did not know to what point the ticket was purchased.

Major James A. Pitcock, chief of detectives, immediately after questioning Davis, called the chief of police at Memphis to warn him to watch for the woman and was told she already had been captured. Sheriff H. M. Adkins and Deputy Sheriff Clift Williams left soon afterward for Memphis.

near Butler one afternoon in December of 1923 and were picked up.

According to evidence and alleged confessions of the youths, the plan for the murder had been premeditated. Bloodworth took a seat in the rear of the car while Jones sat down by the side of Underwood, who was driving. At a signal from Bloodworth, Jone shot to death the salesman.

For two days the search for Underwood was made, and near the close of the second day, his body was found in his car, alongside an unfrequented Taylor county road.

Jones and Bloodworth were arrested and charged with the crime, they being carried to Columbus within a few hours after their arrest, where they have since been incarcerated, except for the trips made back to Butler.

NEW BOND ISSUE OF DODGE MOTORS ON MARKET TODAY

The final step in financial operations incident to the underwriting by Dillon, Read & Co. of the record-breaking Dodge Brothers deal is being consummated today with the public offering of $75,000,000 of 6 per cent sinking fund gold debentures of Dodge Brothers, Inc., which are being sold at 99 and interest. The bonds will be dated April 15, 1925, and bear the maturity date May 1, 1940.

In view of the heavy oversubscriptions for the $85,000,000 of Dodge Brothers, Inc., preference stock sold Thursday — a subscription which totaled applications for nearly six times the amount of stock offered—the bankers are preparing for an early closing of the bond subscription books this morning and for a considerable paring down of allotments.

The bonds now being marketed are in the form of coupon bonds to be issued in interchangeable denominations of $1,000, $500 and $100. They may be redeemed, in whole or in part, on any interest date at 110 and interest until May 1, 1930. After that date the redemption price decreases 1 per cent annually.

One of the interesting features of the issue is its convertible privilege. At the option of the holder, a total face value of $30,000,000 of bonds can at any time, during their life, be converted into class A common stock of no par value. This conversion will be permitted on the basis of an exchange value of $30 per share for the class A common until a total of $5,000,000 face amount of bonds have been converted and an exchange value of $35, $40, $50, $60 and $70 per share for each $5,000,000 of bonds subsequently converted.

In addition to the convertible feature of the issue, a sinking fund of $1,000,000 per annum is provided. The company has agreed to make semi-annual purchases of this amount of bonds yearly, when available, at not to exceed par and interest during the six months after sinking fund allotments become available.

Farm Advisoru Body Will Be Advocated In New Relief Bill

Des Moines, Iowa, April 12.—Establishment of a federal farm advisory council and a federal farm commission to aid the development of cooperative marketing and the disposition of the domestic surplus of agricultural commodities is the keynote of the new farm relief bill to be introduced in the next congress by Dickinson, republican, of Iowa.

The measure has been submitted to the agricultural council in Chicago.

Diamond smuggling from the Kimberley mines is made very difficult by barbed wire inclosures and castiron regulations.

LITTLE GIRL IS KILLED AND SIX OTHERS HURT

C. A. Peacock, Jr., was given first aid treatment at the Atlanta hospital, and at his own request was removed to the Grady. He is suffering from a badly sprained back, a bruised left arm and contusions about the face.

Victim's Survivors.

Martha Grant is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Clifford Grant; two brothers, John Clifford, Jr., and Charney Alexander Grant; her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Peacock, Sr., and her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Peacock, Jr.

Both of the Peacocks who were injured have been connected with Grady hospital for many years. They live on the campus of Emory university.

Six other injuries from automobile mishaps were reported Sunday. They are Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Cunningham, whose address police didn't learn; L. J. Morris, whose address was given as 18 Buena Vista avenue; Leo Wilson, 16-year-old newsboy, who lives at 434 Luckie street; Nelda Wiley, age 6, rural route No. 1, Atlanta, and a negro, Louis Crankshaw.

Injured In Collision.

Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham and Morris were injured in a collision at Highland avenue and Randolph street, in which two automobiles and a street car figured, according to reports to the police.

The accident, according to Cunningham, occurred when Morris suddenly drove his automobile from the curbing on the south side of Highland avenue, striking the Cunningham machine, which was going east, forcing it to collide with an inbound street car going in a westerly direction.

Wilson, the newsboy, was injured at Luckie and Spring streets, by a motor truck. Motorcycle Offiler J. W. Mashburn reported that the newsboy took all responsibility for the accident, stating that he ran into the street suddenly to sell a paper. His injuries consisted of minor cuts and bruises and he declined to go to a hospital.

Doctors and nurses at the Grady hospital were not told how the little Wiley girl was hurt. She had a few cuts and bruises, which they said she received when struck by an automobile. No report of this accident is on file at the police station.

Crankshaw reported to the police that he was knocked down by a speeding automobile, the driver failing to stop. He was unable to furnish the officers the license number of the car.

Narrow Escape for Party.

J. R. Blalock, of 480 Central avenue, his wife and three young women narrowly escaped death Sunday night when the automobile in which they were riding collided with a street car at Main street and Lakewood avenue.

The young women, in the car with Mr. and Mrs. Blalock, were Miss Elizabeth Smith, 23, and Miss Alice Smith, 19, of 109 Cascade avenue, and Miss Katherine Hadley, 27, of 171 East Fair street.

According to information furnished Grady hospital officials, Blalock was going north on Main street and crashed into an outbound Hapeville street car as he attempted to turn into Lakewood avenue.

None of the group were badly injured, though all suffered bruises and lacerations. They were permitted to return to their homes after treatment.

Drives Car Into Ditch.

Within a mile of Rock Cut, where one person was killed and six others injured earlier in the day, A. E. Cunningham, of Griffin, was forced to ditch his car Sunday night to avoid colliding with a train.

As he neared the crossing at a moderate rate of speed, Mr. Cunningham stated he saw the headlights of the approaching engine and, at the same time, realized he could neither stop short of the tracks nor get his machine across ahead of it. He then drove the car, a sedan of expensive make, into a ditch, where it turned over.

Mr. Cunningham received slight cuts and bruises by flying glass. With the aid of several pedestrians and passing motorists, he was able to right his car and continue his journey.

TWO MEN KILLED IN AUTO CRASH.

Richmond, Ind., April 12.—William Lawhorn, 24, and Frank Bussen, were killed instantly today and two others were seriously injured when their automobile was struck by an Indianapolis Terre Haute and Eastern Interurban car near Centerville.

BRIAND ASKED TO FORM CABINET

war, Paul Boncour; minister of interior, M. Marraud; minister of instruction, M. Varenne; minister of navy, M. Danielou; minister of commerce, Louis Loucheur; colonial minister, M. Berenger; minister of finance, Anatole de Monzie or M. Doumer; minister of labor, M. Laval; minister of public works, Daniel Vincent.

Announce Policies Wednesday.

If Briand succeeds, parliament will meet Wednesday to hear the declaration of the new ministry's policies and to increase the power of the Bank of France to print bank notes. This increase merely would regularize a situation wherein the notes have been printed without authorization. For permitting this illegal emission, Herriot was forced from office. Finance Minister de Monzie, holding over with Herriot until a new government can be formed, has threatened to resign Wednesday unless the bank's position is legalized. As De Monzie is a leading candidate for the finance portfolio in Briand's cabinet, the latter will endeavor to rush the vote through in one day. Otherwise, the bank's weekly statement Thursday again would show the emission limit exceeded by more than 2,000,000,000 francs.

Briand Favorably Received.

Briand's selection is favorably received among politicians and is interpreted as meaning that Doumergue tried to find a man competent to follow the concilatory policy urged by Painleve. There is some doubt, however, that Briand will be able to form a cabinet of elements insuring a lasting majority. The senate and the chamber are far apart. The chamber majority that supported Herriot still thinks as it did before he fell, while the senate majority that voted him out of office has not changed.

Parts of Herriot's program must be effected if Briand is to have the support of the left bloc. The status of the Catholic church in France may change with the government. Briand was prominent in the re-establishment of the French embassy to the vatican, which Herriot was pledged to abolish, and spoke against abolition in the chamber. It was Herriot's attitude toward the church, as much as anything else, that roused the senate to defeat him at the first opportunity that lukewarm supporters of the government could be won to the opposition another question. The fatal issue happened to be inflation by illegal printing of francs.

John D.'s Pastor Resigns.

Cleveland, Ohio, April 12.—The resignation of Rev. W. W. Bustard, for 16 years pastor of Euclid avenue Baptist church known here as "John D. Rockefeller's church," was read before the congregation tonight. He came here from Boston. Ill health was given as the reason.

AIR MAIL ROUTES PROPOSED BY NEW

lant, Seattle, Tacoma and Spokane, at a considerable saving of time over the present practice of sending it to San Francisco for air relay.

Self-Sustaining Plan.

The routes between New Orleans and the northern cities would operate independent of the trans-continental service.

In working out its plans, the post-office department has taken the position that development of air service commercially should not be undertaken at the expense of the government but should be sustained through revenues from mail, express and passengers. Under the new law contractors carrying air mail may be paid up to four-fifths of the amount received in postage and are permitted to carry express and passengers in addition.

If these contractors can develop a profitable business, Paul Henderson, second assistant postmaster general, believes a nation-wide commercial aeronautical service will soon grow out of the experiment, giving the nation at the same time a large reserve for national defense, not only in airplanes and pilots, but in people trained to build, operate and maintain them.

LEGION CONTINUES DRIVE FOR FUNDS

encouraging, according to former Governor Hugh M. Dorsey. "I do not believe, however," he said, "that the state has come up to its $75,000 quota, but we have several large communities yet to hear from."

State Subscriptions.

Columbus subscribed $6,165, state headquarters reported. Manchester put Meriwether county over the top with its quota and other reports indicate that towns and cities which fell shy of raising their quotas are determined to keep at it until they have reached the mark set.

Dr. R. C. Eve, grand chef de gare of the 40 et 8 in this state, received a number of telegrams from posts over the state Sunday which indicate that this branch of the legion was back of the drive 100 per cent. The Savannah post contributed $1,000, Americus post contributed $50, while the Athens post joined in with the American Legion post as a whole and expects to report that city over the top today. Augusta 40 et 8 contributed $600 to the drive and reports that in addition it joined with the legion post on a proposition to match the citizens dollar for dollar.

Frederick J. Haynes, Esq., President of Dodge Brothers, Inc., writes as follows:

BUSINESS

Dodge Brothers, Inc., incorporated under the laws of Maryland will own the business and all of the assets (excepting $14,000,000 cash) of Dodge Brothers, a Michigan Corporation, the third largest manufacturer of automobiles in the world. From 1914, when 249 cars were sold, to March 31, 1925, sales have aggregated 1,286,793 cars for a total sale price (for cars and parts) of $1,105,027,599. In comparison with this sales volume of over one billion dollars, loss from bad debts has amounted to $32,141, sales of cars by the factory being for cash only. Distribution is effected by more than 5,700 sales and service representatives throughout the world, of which 4,778 are in the United States and Canada. Advertising expenditures, in addition to amounts expended directly by dealers, have totaled more than $12,000,000. The policy of Dodge Brothers from the beginning has been to produce a car of superior quality, of stable design, selling for a low price. Records indicate that approximately 90% of all Dodge cars manufactured to date are still in service.

EARNINGS

The business has never had an unprofitable year. Operating results for the six years ended December 31, 1924, as certified by Messrs. Haskins & Sells, have been as follows:

	No. of Cars Sold	Net Sales	Net Earnings before deducting Federal Income Taxes
Year ended Dec. 31, 1919	121,010	$120,970,810	$24,194,352
" " " 31, 1920	145,389	161,002,512	18,601,780
" " " 31, 1921	92,476	83,666,284	2,801,370
" " " 31, 1922	164,037	130,625,774	19,054,098
" " " 31, 1923	179,505	141,332,685	11,590,637
" " " 31, 1924	222,236	191,652,446	19,965,440

Net earnings, before deducting Federal income taxes, for the quarter ended March 31, 1925, amounted to $6,291,544 (not including $644,633 profit from sale of real estate located some miles distant from the plant and not useful in the business). These earnings were 177% of net income for the first quarter of 1924 and exceeded by at least 39% the earnings for the corresponding period of any other year since 1920.

Net earnings of $19,965,440 for the year ended December 31, 1924, as shown above, were more than 4.4 times the maximum annual interest charge of $4,500,000 on these Debentures. The average annual earnings of $16,034,613 for the six-year period shown were more than 3½ times this maximum annual interest charge.

EQUITY

A balance sheet, as of April 1, 1925 prepared by Messrs. Haskins & Sells from the books of Dodge Brothers and adjusted to give effect to acquisition of the business and assets by Dodge Brothers, Inc., and to the latter company's capitalization shows cash and United States Government securities aggregating $24,155,004, total current assets of $52,422,321 against current liabilities of $16,664,993, and net tangible assets of $80,658,682, after deducting all liabilities except these debentures. These debentures will be followed by 850,000 shares Preference Stock, entitled to dividends of $7 per share per annum, 1,500,000 shares Common Stock Class A and 500,000 shares Common Stock Class B, all of no par value. This stock will be issued almost entirely against the established earning power, which is not assigned a value in the balance sheet. The 850,000 shares of Preference Stock, each share carrying as a bonus one share of Common Stock Class A, have been sold at a price which indicates a market equity therein of substantially $85,000,000.

CONVERSION PRIVILEGES

These debentures are convertible, at the holder's option, into Common Stock Class A until a maximum of $30,000,000, principal amount, have been so converted. In conversion the debentures shall be taken at their face value, and the values per share at which the Common Stock Class A shall be taken, shall be as follows: $30 in the case of the first $5,000,000 debentures converted; $35 for the next $5,000,000; $40 for the next $5,000,000; $50 for the next $5,000,000; $60 for the next $5,000,000, and $70 for the next $5,000,000. The Company may provide that prior to delivery of debentures purchasers can elect to exercise their conversion privilege. Shares of Common Stock Class A additional to the 1,500,000 shares shortly to be outstanding have been authorized for this conversion. Accrued interest and dividends will be adjusted. Common Stock Class A and Common Stock Class B are identical in all respects except that holders of Common Stock Class A have no voting power for any purpose and that holders of Common Stock Class B have exclusive voting powers for all purposes.

Earnings for the year ended December 31, 1924, adjusted to the basis of the capitalization to be existing on issue of these debentures, were equivalent to $3.80 per share on the 2,000,000 shares of common stock to be outstanding upon such issue and for the quarter ended March 31, 1925, were at the annual rate of more than $6 per share.

MANAGEMENT

A representative Board of Directors will be elected. No change is contemplated in the present active executive personnel.

We offer these debentures for delivery when, as and if issued and received by us, subject to the approval of legal proceedings by counsel. It is expected that delivery will be made on or about April 20, 1925 in the form of interim receipts of Dillon, Read & Co. Arrangements may be concluded whereby prior to delivery of debentures, holders of interim receipts can elect to exercise their right of conversion into Common Stock Class A, thereupon receiving an interim receipt of Dillon, Read & Co. for such stock when, as and if ready for delivery.

Great City-Wide Revival Closed on Easter Sunday, Hundreds Joining Churches

Crowds Fill Churches To Witness Impressive Ceremonies When New Members Are Added to Rolls.

The biggest and most successful city-wide revival ever held in the south came to a close Sunday night when 91 Protestant churches added hundreds of new members to their rolls.

Every church which joined in the campaign will be represented at a meeting to be held at 10:30 o'clock this morning at the First Baptist church when a complete tabulation of the results of the revival will be announced. While exact figures were not obtainable Sunday night, it is estimated that more than 2,500 church additions have resulted from the series of services and that 1,000 will join Atlanta churches in the near future.

First Baptist Church.

More than a score of new members were accepted into membership through baptism at the First Baptist church Sunday night. Another score or more were received by letter and profession of faith. These services, which were witnessed by a capacity audience, were conducted by Dr. Charles W. Daniel, the pastor.

Rev. Marvin Williams, pastor of Wesley Memorial church, who has been assisted in his revival services by Rev. Frank M. Neal, of Texas, evangelist, and Fred H. Poulter, of Ardmore, Okla., singer, received 35 new members at the Sunday morning services, and expects to take another large class into the fellowship of the church next Sunday. Dr. Williams reports that 100 conversions occurred during the course of the revival in his church, and that some 200 were reclaimed. One young man will enter the ministry as the result of the revival, and five young people will enter the missionary field.

In commenting upon the revival, not only in his own church, but in all other churches of the city, Dr. Williams stated that there is no doubt but that the simultaneous plan of services has been a great success in this city. "The effect has been marvelous. The foundation in this city is stronger now than it has ever been before, and I firmly believe that the effect of this great revival will be felt for many years to come," he said. Mr. Neal and Mr. Poulter will go to Marietta today, where they will conduct a series of services.

Twenty-nine new members were received into full membership of the North Avenue Presbyterian church at the Easter morning services. Dr. Richard Orme Flinn, the pastor, announced and it is expected that 30 more will unite at a later date. They were converted during the revival services which were conducted by Dr. William Evans, of Los Angeles, Cal.

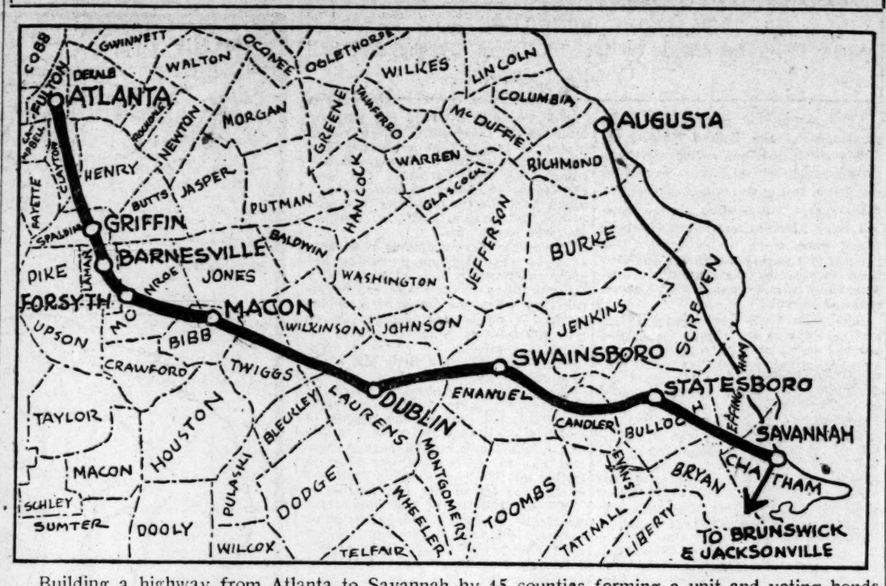

Dr. Flinn reported that the church was too small to hold the crowd that flocked to the edifice at both the morning and night services. At the morning services it was necessary to throw the doors to the pastor's study open, the vestibule was crowded with people who stood throughout the service to say nothing of those who lined the walls of the auditorium.

Rev. Wallace Rogers, pastor of Trinity Methodist church, who has conducted his own services throughout the entire series, added 20 new members to the church's rolls Sunday morning, and four members by letter. He expects to take 25 more new members and ten more by letter into the church at an early date, as the result of the campaign. He stated Sunday night that he believed that the people of his church were fully aroused as to their religious duties and obligations.

Rev. C. M. Meeks, pastor of Park Street Methodist church, will continue his revival services for another week. The interest in the services has been so great, it is stated, and the crowds so large, that the continuance was decided upon. Many conversions have been reported during the revival, and on several occasions people have been turned away from the church for lack of room.

Three hundred new members were received into membership Sunday morning and night at St. Paul's Methodist church by the pastor, Rev. L. Wilkie Collins, and his assistant, Rev. W. H. Boring, in what Dr. Collins termed as the biggest day in the history of the church. The services started with more than 1,500 in attendance at Sunday school. At the morning worship the church was so crowded that many persons were obliged to stand, and several hundred were turned away. A special Easter musical program was rendered at the night service, the choir being assisted by the Howard theater orchestra and Nora Allen, one of the world-famed prima donnas. The service at night was well attended by theatrical people, who had been especially invited to attend, and Mr. Collins reported that the church was again crowded to capacity. Revival services were brought to a close with several more conversions.

Highway From Atlanta to Savannah Is Planned

Building a highway from Atlanta to Savannah by 15 counties forming a unit and voting bonds for the purpose is proposed by Harvey Granger, secretary of the Savannah Board of Trade. Mr. Granger has called a meeting to be held in Savannah on April 23, when representatives from the counties concerned are asked to be present and full plans for the proposed highway will be discussed. Voting bonds by the coastal counties in Georgia recently by forming themselves into one unit and voting as a whole has opened up new avenues for roadwork in Georgia.

A unit road is also proposed from Savannah to Augusta. The arrow points toward the coastal highway from Savannah to the Florida line, soon to be paved.

4,000 MEN ATTEND EASTER SERVICE OF BIBLE CLASS

Little Rock, Ark., April 12.—A congregation of men, estimated to have numbered more than 4,000, today participated in an early morning Easter service by the Harry G. Knowles Bible class here. The meeting started at 6 a. m. and continued until 9 a. m. Two bands, a drum corps and two choral organizations furnishing music.

THOUSANDS THRONG EASTER SERVICES

A surprising number of gay neckties, particularly the gory red ones, added a spangle of color without which no crowd seemed quite complete.

The Fashion Parade.

The striking surprise of the day's parade, perhaps, was the absence of the extremely short skirt which fashion has decreed for milady this spring and which mode-makers have insisted are long overdue. Brilliantly-hued costumes—pastel-hues more especially—were sobered later in the day with the more "quietly" dressed church-going overflow which mingled and milled with the motley pageant-throng. Splashes of color here and there were conspicuous later in the afternoon and many of the gay neckties had been exchanged for sober stripes.

At noon and shortly afterwards when fashionably-gowned church congregations were released, Peachtree and other central boulevards seemed to form a single, sweeping line of marching vari-colored persons. There was an abundance of evidence of the usual good business at flower shops—many women wearing shoulder bouquets and corsages of orchids, sweet peas, pansies and violets.

And the balmy breezes and glowing sunshine which Sunday strollers enjoyed is promised for Monday and Tuesday, according to weather reports from Washington.

Throngs Attend Services.

Immense throngs gathered for special services Sunday morning, all Christian churches in the city joining in observance with appropriate musical and other features of divine worship. At night, equally as large crowds attended various church services.

In the morning, beginning earlier than is ordinarily true—probably because of smiling skies and balmy temperatures—motley throngs were augmented and before the noon hour Peachtree and down-town streets were milling lines of bespangled crowds. In the afternoon, and until late in the evening, gaudily-costumed men and women, heralding advent of spring, continued the parade which is so spectacular a feature of each year's Easter Sunday in Atlanta.

PRESIDENT AND WIFE HAILED BY CROWDS.

Washington, April 12.—Mrs. Coolidge followed the economic program of her husband to the extent of wearing a spring coat that did some service last year when she and the president joined the Easter throng at church, Sunday, but her dress and hat were brand new to those who watched her come and go.

She wore a blonde crepe de Chine dress, in the latest mode, with ruffles down the front. The spring coat, which has been seen before, was of blue silk, with tan lining. Her hat was a black straw, with deep pink roses on the side. She wore stockings to match her dress, and black satin slippers.

Cordial and smiling, President and Mrs. Coolidge were warmly greeted by a huge throng gathered about the doors of the First Congregational church, which they attended. The street was blocked by the crowd which waited for the approach of the white house car. Many tourists were among those who watched the president and his wife enter the church.

JERUSALEM CROWDS THRONG TO CHURCH.

Jerusalem, April 12.—(By the Associated Press.)—Several American Catholic bishops, Protestant pastors and Jewish rabbis figured prominently in today's Easter services in Jerusalem. The city was crowded with more pilgrims than at any time since pre-war days.

Under a hot sun, throngs poured all day past the Jaffa gate, through the narrow streets to the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, where people of all religions and sects fought for standing room around the tomb of Christ.

Armenians, Copts, Arabs, Russians, Greeks, Syrians, Abysinians, Americans, French, British and Spanish, joined one another in a bewildering variety of dress.

The Right Rev. Francis J. Tief, bishop of Concordia, Kas., led a group of 100 American pilgrims into the edifice.

Special services were conducted by various relief, missionary and educational societies. Throughout Palestine and Assyria, pilgrims and children in the orphanages and schools of the American Near East Relief held special services of thanksgiving.

In the American church here the sermon was preached by the Rev. John Timothy Stone, of Chicago.

GAUDY SPRING STYLES IN FRENCH PARADES.

Paris, April 12.—Short skirts, bright-blue hats and gaudy shoes that were almost sandals, took French minds off the political crisis on Easter Sunday.

Beautiful spring weather and the appropriate Sabbath produced a fashion parade at the Auteuil race course in which English and American women predominated. City dwellers spent the holiday in the country or at the seaside while the rural population streamed to cities, so it was a joyous occasion all around.

All the famous costumers were represented at Auteuil and they marked the season as one of vivid colors. Bright blue hats, low in the back to cover shaved necks, were most popular. Suits were simple and on masculine lines. They were uniformly short, many of them but slightly below the knees, exposing a graceful sweep of flesh-colored hosiery or of hose to match the suit.

Fur has been discarded except as trimming. Among the more striking dresses were several of a golden tint.

Interwoven leather of fantastic design and coloring is the proper thing in shoes. Several shades of leather are combined to make the skimpy shoes a striking novelty. At the instep they are open and only high heels distinguish them from gaudy sandals.

ENGLISH DANDIES OUTSHINE WOMEN.

London, April 12.—Male dandies outshone the women in the Easter parade that straggled along the three-bordered pathways of Hyde park. The park is the Fifth avenue of the British empire for Easter purposes.

The newspapers condemn the flop-pish styles and declare that men capable of wearing such clothes are sufficient explanation of the declining British prestige in sports.

Beautiful is scarcely an adequate word to describe some of the young exquisites who strolled adorned with conceits such as the old park has not seen since Beau Brummell wandered through it for the last time.

The foppery of balloon trousers triumphed during the Easter march. Some of the bulbous breeches were dove colored, others were lavender or butternut brown. They were worn with darker coats, usually of brown or blue. Some of the more dainty paraders wore a harmonious handkerchief tucked between their vest and shirt so that its folds partly obscured the necktie of the wearer.

The women did what they could to attract attention with a crop of wide-brimmed hats and skirts which exposed the legs from an inch below the knee. Brown and tan were the favorite color schemes for feminine attire, but not even twinkling legs and graceful figures would suffice to restore the women to first place in the Easter parade.

CATHOLIC THRONGS IN GREAT SERVICES.

Rome, April 12.—Thousands of Americans assembled with thousands of other nationalities before St. Peter's to witness an awesome celebration of Easter mass by Cardinal Merry del Val.

Priceless vestments and treasures were exposed to view on this holy morning. Then the multi-colored assemblage knelt in reverence as the holy relics were raised before their eyes. With the stately pageantry of which the Holy Roman church is a master, the spear which tradition says pierced the body of Christ at the crucifixion was shown from a balcony before a background of prelates. Then a bit of the true cross was raised to view, followed by St. Veronica's towel.

The holy relics seemed to exude a quivering reverence that filled the great architectural cross that is St. Peter's. The packed thousands in the aisles and transepts and in the remote recesses of the great basilica appeared to feel the weight of the hour when the instruments so intimately associated with the suffering on Calvary were waved above them.

The pope celebrated mass in a special vatican chapel. Only a few intimate friends were permitted to share the holy father's devotion.

St. Peter's was the show place. Pilgrimages from almost every country assembled there. The mass began at 11 o'clock and the cardinal was assisted by prelates of the papal household in the holy rites. The cathedral sacristy had given up for a day some of its priceless treasure. Bellini and Michelangelo were represented by their art and sacred vessels graced the altars.

— Easter Messages —

Bishop William T. Manning, New York: "There are three glorious messages which Easter brings to us. First, it is Easter which justifies our faith in Jesus Christ; second, it is Easter that gives us the faith that we need to meet the hard trials, the bitter sorrows of our lives, and third, it is Easter which makes us sure of the life beyond this one."

Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, at Plymouth church, Brooklyn: "Evolution has aided the belief that people have been placed in the universe for some particular end; the whole experiment of human kind cannot have been made to end in a cinder heap. It would be a strange kind of God who would have us end all things with death."

Dr. Jason Noble Pierce, president Coolidge's pastor, Washington: "We must depend upon the marvelous power of God, as demonstrated through the resurrection of Christ from the dead, to show us how to have justice in our nation and brotherhood in international affairs. We are so weak. We cannot accomplish these things without the power of God."

Rabbi Schulman, Tempel Beth-El, New York: "Christendom, with reverence, with love, with faith, with all things that inspire in anyone the deepest respect, is looking back to Palestine. Western civilization is thus recording the fact that it owes its deepest impulses to a spirit born of Judean soil."

Dr. Christian F. Reisner, New York: "Nobody is saved because of creedal correctness or ritual regularity. One is saved only when he is fit to be saved and can be of some use in the next world. The only way to grow big enough to be saved is to give enough service to your fellowmen."

The Rev. Luke Rader, Central Baptist church, Atlanta: "The keystone of Christianity and the great outstanding fact of its veracity is in the resurrection of Jesus Christ. Granting the truth of the resurrection, all other fundamental truths of Christianity follow. On no other basis than His resurrection can the church of Jesus Christ be accounted for."

Dr. Paul Revere Frothingham, Arlington Street Congregational Unitarian church, Boston: "We have superabundant cause for our faith in a future life. It is a belief that is instinctive and almost universal. Few men are so ignorant that they are not able to look forward to this hope, to something back of the veil of death."

The Rev. George Sherman Mills, first Unitarian church, Chicago: "The answer to the insistent questions of this day is not a summons to a forlorn hope, but a gospel. Jesus is the living God, and the Leader of men. He is ever present, not as a physical presence, but as a spiritual Power. In the recorded biography we keep the image of Him fresh."

The Rev. Graham Stifler, First Baptist church, Evanston, Ill.: "The resurrection should teach humanity the triumph of life over death. It was a divine lesson in which we should see the reality of spiritual things and keep our faith."

The Rev. Charles Gorman Richards, Rogers Park Presbyterian church, Chicago: "We must accept the divine Word without questioning. It is to be deplored that some of us are unwilling to believe in a law, the application of which we cannot see worked out before our eyes."

AN EXPENSIVE EXPERIMENT.

The following dispatch from New York appeared in a recent issue of The Constitution:

"Sales of the United States shipping board's merchant fleet to private owners who are American citizens and competent to meet the competition of foreign shipping will go forward 'as rapidly as possible,' T. V. O'Connor, chairman of the board, said in an address tonight at Arcadia hall, where merchant marine night was observed."

That is good news. It is good news from two viewpoints—one that the policy of the government to stop its drain upon the treasury in trying to do something it ought never to have permanently attempted, is now definite and can be depended upon; and the other, that the sad experiences of the government in owning and operating a nation's merchant marine ought to put an end for all time to the wild radicalism in American politics that has been built up around a plea for the government ownership of utilities, and especially the railroads.

The taxpayers of this country will be paying through generations yet unborn for the stupendous losses that resulted from war-time operation of the railroads. Those conditions, however, were abnormal, and there is no good reason to revert to them here.

But the operation of the merchant marine has been in peace times, and every method known to the business end of successful ocean transportation has been employed to make the undertaking a success.

It has not only produced a heavy drain upon the treasury, but American shipping interests have sadly suffered—and all from the basic reason that government ownership and operation of the merchant carriers flying our flag is wrong in principle, just as the peacetime ownership operation of railroads would be wrong in principle.

Someone may argue that the government has permitted private operation of merchant ships, and has not only sold private interests their ships, but virtually financed them. That is true, but so long as the government is operating in opposition to private interests it finances, it is doing that which is so obviously unsound, economically, that a child ought to know better.

The wise course is to get rid of every government-owned ship at the earliest possible moment, and charge up the enormous losses during six years of shipping turmoil and strife—to "experience."

TO MAKE OIL RESEARCH.

The following Associated Press dispatch from Baltimore is significant:

"A vast program of oil research has been framed by a commission of 11 leading scientists, and its operation only awaits the sanction of the financial leaders of this industry," Dr. Charles H. Herty, of New York, president of the Synthetic Organic Chemical Manufacturers' association, declared in an address today before the division of industrial and engineering chemistry of the American Chemical society in session here. Entrance of the research chemists into this field will greatly enhance the national wealth, asserted Dr. Herty, describing amazing advances in synthetic organic chemical manufacture in the United States. Appropriate financial provisions, now under consideration, will inaugurate a new epoch in American oil in the belief of Dr. Herty.

Coming from the source it does the above news is comforting. It will serve to throw the light of truth developed by research on what is without doubt the most heartless monopoly there is in the world today.

Dr. Herty is a Georgian, a native of Baldwin county, alumnus of the university, where he also taught chemistry, and is today one of the most outstanding chemists in America by reason of constructive achievements. It was he who revolutionized the naval stores producing industry throughout the yellow pine belt by the introduction of the cup and gutter system in lieu of the old destructive "box" system that not only reduced the value of the turpentined timber for milling purposes, but yielded hundreds of millions of dollars worth of standing timber to the storms. It served also to produce a greater yield of gum.

Knowing, therefore, the resourcefulness of the man, aside from his high position in American practical science, something may be expected of the coming petroleum investigations that he has told about.

VALUE OF GOOD WILL.

No transaction in recent years has so emphasized the money value of "good will" as the recent sale of the Dodge Brothers automobile property. In the price the new owners paid for the business $50,000,000 went for "good will," which is public confidence. This enormous figure amounted to as much as the entire capital stock of the concern. This cash value of a good reputation—the asset value of honor—is by far the most outstanding of the many unique and novel features associated with the Dodge Brothers trade.

Twenty years ago the Dodge Brothers, one a practical machinist and the other a business man, owned and operated a machine shop in Detroit. They were successful, but to that limited extent that such businesses in their normal routine reach. But even then the brothers made their name stand for something—for good service, fair dealing, integrity.

It was this "good will" as machinists established by them that gave to them the opportunity to develop into the automobile manufacturing business. Other factories trusted the Dodge Brothers with the moulding of their parts, and with the assembling of motors, etc. Had they been less careful about the reputation of Dodge Brothers' work, and the asset value of their name—guarding it jealously—as placed on their products, the opportunity would not have come to them.

Thus it is when they began the manufacture of a car they placed their firm name on it, and they made it reflect the credit they had established. They made the product as good as the name—and that was sufficient. Success did not lose for them the commercial value of the "good will" they had established. They exploited the name naturally, but did not seek to capitalize it at the expense of service. They always built "good will" along with building business, and when the sale came the other day the "good will" was found as valuable as the business. There is a lesson in all of this that should serve a good purpose.

TO THE POLE "BY AIR."

Two internationally-famous arctic explorers will attempt to discover this summer, by means of airplanes, whether or not there is an arctic continent between Alaska and the north pole. The one is Donald B. MacMillan, Peary's old lieutenant, who will fly the American flag. The other is the Norwegian, Roald Amundsen.

The plans for the latter have proceeded along an elaborate scale. Two powerful Italian metal planes have been built for the expedition, and the expedition is now on the way to Spitzbergen, to take to the air from that base early in June. The machines will be fitted for a 1,600-mile flight and the distance from King's Bay to the pole is 690 miles. According to press dispatches from Copenhagen the plan is to spend ten hours at the pole making observations and then fly back to Spitzbergen.

According to Washington dispatches in Wednesday's Constitution, MacMillan will depart on June 15 in his ship for Wiscasset. She will carry two seaplanes with naval crews and will sail for Etah, Greenland, to push on if practicable to Kennedy Channel, where the air base will be established

Great responsibility rests upon MacMillan, for in the Norwegian he has a most formidable rival.

The outstanding feature in these preparations is the prophecy of Admiral Peary made in his book "Secrets of Polar Travel" in 1917. He said then that "the time was near"—

"when airplanes will have such extended radius of certain flight as will make the preliminary reconnoissance of the unknown areas in the north and south polar regions a matter of a few weeks instead of several years."

The whole world will watch these two arctic explorers, not so much to see which shall be the winner of the first correct information about a long-disputed and as yet unsettled question as to the reality or myth of Crocker Land, but to see the further possible service of the airplane put to its severest test.

It's in the nature of a compliment to congress to say that Washington is a dull town, with nobody to blame it on.

A Real Progressive Sign.

The Albany Herald says that "one of the progressive signs of the times is the appropriation by state legislatures, for advertising purposes of large sums of money, of which The Herald adds—

"The state that pays no attention to publicity and employs no organized effort to present its attractions or natural advantages to the rest of the world is behind the times. The legislature of the conservative old state of Maine has recently appropriated $100,000 for advertising its summer resort business for the season of 1925, and nearly all the states are beginning to realize that it pays to advertise. Good roads and publicity—that's the slogan."

Today's Talk

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

NEAR.

All the books in the world about the stars could not arouse nor touch the heart as one single night spent under the rich and resplendent sky.

For hours I have sat or thrown my body against the soft dirt of the earth and looked into the still and blinking eyes of the heavens. I have felt all mankind brought near to me, and wished happiness for every creature under the serene and soothing influence of this incomparable of all sights.

When you lie down upon the ground, you come to feel what a kinship you have with the earth and why long ago they began to speak of this earth as "Mother Earth."

Get near to things and you learn their value and appreciate their use.

If you feel that you must pass judgment upon your friend, wait until you have come very close to him. And remember that you do not touch a life until you have seen with your eyes the scars of its sorrows bared.

The contrasting background to a character is made up of its struggles, its sufferings, and its losses. When its large and dominating success stands out in all its strength and beauty, you feel the background as you do the masses of depth that the painter's brush first places as a nest for his masterpiece.

When I look into the face of the night with its jeweled pathways, I do not doubt but that there is a God up there somewhere. I wouldn't argue it for a minute.

And then when I see a sweet and simple act of unselfish service rendered in everyday life, I am convinced that God doesn't stay up there where it is so lovely, but likes to be where folks are and where He is needed when those who love Him want to talk things over.

Gissing wrote of poverty so that his readers felt it. No wonder. He lived so near to it that it taught its language to him.

Giant Air Tender Sails for Bermuda For Tests in April

Norfolk, Va., April 12.—The navy air tender Patoka, steamed from Hampton Roads this morning for Bermuda, where she will take part in maneuvers with the dirigible Los Angeles, which are expected to begin about April 15. The Patoka, which is said to be the only vessel of its wind fitted with a mooring mast big enough to hold the giant airship, will act as mother ship to the Los Angeles and the dirigible will be moored to her when not in flight.

The mast already has been tested by the dirigible Shenandoah and is declared to have proven to be everything claimed for it.

Stop the Child Marriages

BY SOPHIE IRENE LOEB,
Whose Work for Child Welfare is Known Throughout the Country.

(The astounding figures for child marriages in the United States, recently published, has called attention to the need of legislative protection for boys and girls under sixteen in this respect. According to the Russell Sage Foundation report, covering many years work in 90 cities, there are 667,000 such marriages. In New York city alone, the statistics available show 157 children under sixteen married in 1919.)

The New York state senate in its closing days of the recent legislature marked to its credit the passage of a bill that would prohibit the marriage of children under 16 years of age. This measure, however, was stifled in a committee in the assembly in the dying hours of the session and therefore has to go over until next January

But that such a bill must pass, not only in New York but in every other state, is evidenced by the mass of facts and statistics that have been advanced by various social agenices such as the Russell Sage Foundation and the New York State Commission to Examine Laws Relating to Child Welfare—the latter having sponsored the bill. In most instances, only consent of the parents was necessary to the marriage of a child under 16. And the unscrupulous parents are legion. In very few localities have public officers any choice but to grant marriage certificates. In one county of New York, however, a very wise provision has been instituted that a parent who seeks a license for the marriage of a child under 16, is at once regarded as an improper guardian and so adjudged.

There is only one possible reason in this enlightened age for a child under 16 to marry—and that is where a girl is about to become a mother. But when parents go so far in the case of a girl as to make up their minds and the child's as well, to marry her off to somebody, it is then of vital importance that the community step in and protect the child.

One has only to read the pathetic histories of these unfortunate young people to realize that a concentrated effort must be made throughout the country to stop bartering the lives and souls of young children into a union that in the majority of cases proves unbearable, and is nothing short of barbarous.

Fancy the sorry spectacle of parents of a 13-year-old bride punishing her after the nuptials for playing with other children in the street and insisting that when she jump rope she do so in the back yard because she is now a "married woman," or the intolerant condition of where a stepmother marries off a little girl of 14 to a man of 40.

Aside from the physical aspect of the situation, every child has the right to go through the growing periods of youth and all that it implies—of joy and freedom and development of physical and mental capabilities later to decide for itself as to whom each will choose for his or her life partner.

To say nothing of the importance of safeguarding childhood, society must protect itself from the community burdens and public charges that always follow mismated marriages and wrongful unions.

A survey of the domestic relations courts shows that the majority of cases that find their way into these tribunals of family misery are due to youthful marriages—even above 16 years of age. And the divorce courts have similar statistics. Everywhere we are insisting on laws that will protect children in industry. We have generally prohibited children under 16 from going to work. Yet we have been woefully lacking in safeguarding children from going into the biggest and most difficult job of all—producing the family. And it is upon this and the home that all social progress and civilization is based.

Historians will record child marriages in the same category with the Dark Ages—a blot of humanity. Every legislature of every state needs an awakening on this evil.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

"All Is Vanity."

The common weal of the natives of Florida and their pride in the state's marvelous progress, have made them close their eyes a good deal lately to lack of prohibition enforcement and other "social evils." Yet, one clergyman has arisen recently, who rises above this spirit of patriotism and has begun to denounce the sinfulness of the Floridians, with the dire prophecy that prosperity will be taken away if they do not mend their ways. He says "liquor flows freely" and "gambling is openly indulged in." Of the petting parties on the beaches he remarks that it "breaks the decorum and beauty" of natural scenic grandeur, and that it reflects the "empty-mindedness of many young people." So thought also a mediaeval writer of great repute when he wrote after observing the general frivolity that went on around him: "No gentleman should kiss a lady unexpectedly, snatch off her cap, her neckerchief, her bracelet, or a ribbon to wear as a favor or to pin on in order to give people the idea that he is madly in love with her. It is also very indecent to take off one's cloak, one's wig, or one's coat or to mend one's garter in public. To carry away a lady's letters or read her private tablets is behavior of great familiarity." The old etiquette chronicler might have written for modern Florida days with the exception of taking off wigs, they do all these things without the least shame or concern. But they're happy while doing it.

Old Crisis Returns.

Twenty-five years ago Paul Kruger personally took command of the Boer forces against Britain after General Piet Joubert had surrendered at Paardeberg. Yet the Boer hesitance was broken. Reinforcements were pouring in from England and the homesteads of the Dutch were being reduced to ashes with systematic regularity. For as long as the Boers could rely on food supplies from home they kept the field. The English discovered and consequently decided upon the "war necessity" of burning homes and herding the women and children together in the terrible concentration camps. Under the peace terms, Britain did a strange thing for a conqueror. She agreed to rebuild every destroyed farm house and reimburse every Boer for destroyed crops. This was probably due to public opinion at home, for the war had not been popular all around by any means with the English people. Today South Africa is facing a new crisis. It has never become the Eldorado some Englishmen expected it would be under British rule. The present crisis is caused by the old friction, the treatment and social standing of the native blacks. Premier Herzog wants to settle the negro in segregated farm areas, but the negroes, having become industrial workers in mines and industries and outnumbering the whites, Boer and Britain combined, prefer to stay in the cities. They have no ambition to go pioneering in the unsettled open spaces of the veldt, where their savage ancestors roamed and battled unchecked only two generations ago. They have become used to western civilization and have tasted from "the fleshpots of Egypt."

Holland's Neutrality.

Opponents to the plan to scrap the army in Holland advance the argument that the Dutch forces kept the Germans out in 1914. As a matter of fact, however, the German high command did not worry a great deal about one small army more or less in the opposing camp. If it had been thought advisable to march through Holland the Germans would have marched through as they did through Belgium, Rumania and Serbia. They reckoned their losses, estimating half a million dead for this, a million for that and began hacking their way through. Rumania was the saddest spectacle of the lot. Allied troops in the line were buoyed up with magnificent descriptions of the strength and size of the Rumanian army. The Germans would never dare to attack such a strong country, it was said. Suddenly Ludendorff thought it necessary to break through Rumania and come to the aid of Turks and Bulgars. In six weeks time the Rumanian king was a fugitive on Russian soil and the Rumanian army annihilated by Machensen. Had Holland been in the way she would have shared a similar fate. Dutch bravery could no more stand the high explosives than the Belgian forts. But Holland's neutrality was worth more to Germany than Holland's hostility.

Injections of Reason.

Mussolini fears a new war and asked the Italian senate to consider plans for strengthening the army. The premier asked the senators: "Do you think the 1914 conflict was the last?" And they answered with a unanimous: "No." So humanity is to wallow in blood once again in the opinion of Italian law makers. For "war has always been with us and will remain with us," said Mussolini. Yet cholera and other scourges of mankind have almost disappeared from the earth. And why should not war? Surely we are not to believe that war is some sort of divine institution, part and parcel the very fabric of creation? A necessity, an unavoidable law of nature? Mussolini added that every war can be explained historically. Let statesmen and leaders then study the historical causes of war as the bio-chemist and bacteriologist study the causes of diphtheria and cancer. The diseases of the body are being conquered. The disease of war, most terrible and disgusting of all afflictions of humanity will prove amenable to some injections of reason.

SERMONS TO LIVE BY

BY ELAM FRANKLIN DEMPSEY

Text: "God is Love."—1 John 4:16.

What conception of God we have determines our type of religion and, hence, the style of life we lead.

Bishop Walter Russell Lambuth, of precious memory, once wrote:

"Self-giving love is the key to Jesus' conception of the fatherhood of God.

"This was the central motive of his own life—a motive big enough to float a nation and to save a world.

"His kingdom was not to be established by force, but by the victorious power of love.

"To Peter, his militant disciple, he said: 'Put up again thy sword into its place, for all they that take the sword shall perish with the sword.'

"He could, by a word, have created a formidable army in Judea. He could have launched a fleet upon the Mediterranean greater than 10,000 Roman galleys or brought to his aid 12 legions of angels, who were ready at his bidding to spring from the battlements of heaven. But all that would have defeated his purpose.

"He was not to compel men by might, but to lead them by a sacrificial love. 'Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friend.'

"It was such a love as this that transformed the life of Saul, the persecutor and enemy of Christians, into Paul, the apostle of Jesus Christ, and the lover of men."

Such a love as this will transform every life into which it fully enters.

"Love is the fulfilling of the law, for love worketh no evil to his neighbor."

"There is no law against love"—the holy love of Christian hearts may be indulged without limit to the blessing of all men.

Quarreling Over the Customer

HEALTH TALKS

EFFECTS OF TONSILLECTOMY.

Dr. Albert D. Kaiser, children's specialist, Rochester, N. Y., has studied the reasons for and the effects from the removal of the tonsils in about 8,000 school children. His opinions may be considered authoritative. Probably no one else has had wider experience or made a more careful study of this question. Dr. Kaiser's latest report deals with the condition of 1,200 children examined three years after the operation for removal of the tonsils or tonsils and adenoids. This study has all the more value because Dr. Kaiser has been able to compare the condition observed in the 1,200 children whose tonsils were removed three years ago with the present condition of another group of 1,200 children, who three years ago had enlarged or diseased tonsils or tonsils and adenoids and were recommended for operation, but were not operated upon. Surely, such a checkup with such a control must carry great weight with any sensible person who really wants to know the value of the average tonsillectomy in childhood.

Of the 1,200 children operated on, 674 had been subject to frequent attacks of sore throat or tonsilitis up to the time of the operation, and in the three-year period since removal of their tonsils only 120 of the children had continued to have sore throat or tonsilitis attacks. Nearly half of the 1,200 children operated on had been subject to frequent coryza or cri; in the three years since operation 146 of them continued to have attacks of so-called "head cold."

Of the children operated on, 1,072 had enlarged cervical "glands" (lymph nodes)—commonly known as "kernels" in the neck. In the three-year period since the operation the cervical nodes have disappeared in 352 cases and remained in evidence in 720 cases. Since the operation 48 children, who had never before had enlarged cervical nodes, have developed these "kernels." This would seem to show that infected tonsils and their removal can have little influence upon enlarged glands in the neck.

Acute or chronic running ear was a complaint in 136 of the 1,200 children operated on, and 42 of these remained unaffected by the operation. In addition in the three years since operation 26 children not previously subject to ear trouble have developed running ears. Among the 1,200 children not operated on, 75 have had discharging ears in the last three years.

Before the operation 53 of the 1,200 children had had diphtheria; since the operation only three cases of diphtheria have occurred among the 1,200 children. As Dr. Kaiser suggests, diseased tonsils afford fertile soil for the diphtheria bacillus.

A history of rheumatism, joint pains or "growing pains" was obtained in 128 of the 1,200 children not operated on, and in 129 of the 1,200 children operated on. Of the group operated on, 116 had developed their joint trouble since the operation. Evidently, then, tonsil removal is no panacea for so-called "rheumatism." But the operation has proved of distinct value in the prevention of heart disease, which is part and parcel of the focal infection from the tonsils which is known as "rheumatism." Among the 1,200 children operated on, there were 44 cases of heart disease, 13 of which have developed since the operation; among the 1,200 children not operated on there were 52 cases of heart disease. But this evidence is greater than it seems, for unquestionably many more of the children not operated on will develop heart disease from their diseased tonsils in the next few years.

Thomaston Farmer Leads in Cotton Demonstration Test

Thomaston, Ga., April 12.—(Special.)—A. H. Denham of this county led a large number of other big farmers in middle Georgia in creditable showings made in the conduct of cotton demonstration farms operated under the supervision of the American Cotton association boll weevil control campaign in 1924, as reports made public by the managing director, Harvie Jordan, show.

On eight acres of land he picked 9,100 pounds seed cotton which made 3,600 pounds lint, bringing in $1,000. The cost was $263, showing a net profit of about $800.

FARMERS OPPOSE PACKERS' MERGER AS "MEAT TRUST"

Washington, April 12.—The farmers' national council announced today it will "probably seek an injunction" to obtain court action on the Armour-Morris packing merger unless Secretary Jardine finds the transaction to be in violation of the packers' and stockyards' act.

Secretary Jardine, after a week of argument by attorneys for the government and packers, yesterday took the question of the validity of the merger under advisement.

"Without impugning or even criticising" the secretary, the council set forth as a reason for its desire to have the courts decide the question its opinion that the "principle of the Armour-Morris merger would justify a merger of all four big meat packers into a complete food trust."

Southland's Love for Art Discussed by League Head

The address delivered recently by J. Carroll Payne, of Atlanta, president of the Southern States Art league, at the annual meeting of the league in this city, is such a forceful presentation of the work and the opportunities of the league that The Constitution presents it in full, below:

The Southern States Art league, composed of the art associations of cities throughout the south, is doing valuable work in encouraging the establishment of local art associations throughout the south urging where possible the building of museums for display of pictures, sculpture and art work generally. The effort of the league to this end has met with remarkable response.

To all those interested in this splendid undertaking the address of President Payne will be read with cordial approval.

Payne's Address.

Speaking to the league, President Payne said:

"Our league, as you understand full well, was created to satisfy a need which the local art associations in the various southern cities could not give. The local art associations encourage the art spirit in their own communities, foster local and immature talent and stimulate the desire for study, while our league desires not only to spread the artistic spirit abroad through our southland but to secure by exhibits for the southern artists contact and opportunity of a wider nature. At present the south is in the position of not being even seriously considered as a part of the art world save as a timid purchaser of pictures.

After a slow recovery from the dreadful shock and destruction of war carried on within her borders, the south having finally acquired material wealth, is turning her face to the aesthetic, the beautiful, the artistic, the spiritual things in life. Heretofore her talented sons and daughters, with the craving for art, have been compelled to seek first training then support either in Europe or in the north and east. There were no art schools of prominence, no opportunity for advancement, no material rewards for accomplishment. This condition is improving and we strive by our league to hasten the day when the south may take her stand with the other sections of our common country in the artistic world.

"We need a better and more firmly knit organization and to that end I strongly urge the election of a permanent board of directors, who shall serve for a term of years. You can never hope to function successfully until that is done. It does not matter whether your president is elected annually or for a longer term, so long as your executive committee or directors be sufficiently permanent to enable them to operate with consistency and experience.

Reviews Past Year.

"During the year 1924 the Grand Central Art galleries of New York sent their officers with all their wealth of American art in pictures and sculpture to Atlanta for a public exhibit. During two weeks this wonderful display was open to all. No more delightful opportunity was ever given our city to gratify its artistic instincts. It was not merely the fortunate few who enjoyed this exhibition, but the rank and file. With that instinctive love of beauty, which is humanity's happiest trait, the people thronged the Biltmore day after day, night after night, revealing in the light of their eyes and in their faces aglow, an enthusiasm which only a sincere and wondrously awakened feeling could inspire. We figured about 24,000 persons visited the exhibition. Through such an institution the interests aroused during these two magical weeks will be maintained and developed as a permanent and priceless portion of Atlanta's artistic life. We hope to have annual exhibitions, and another exhibit this year is assured us.

"I cannot urge you too earnestly to take up with this association the question of having a southern circuit established whereby other southern cities could join together and thus bring about such an annual display of pictures as we have had here. The benefit to be derived needs no argument from me. Not only are its educational benefits immeasurable to schools and colleges, as we have found by the numbers of scholars who visited our exhibition, but the wider value, the enrichment and quickening of the artistic spirit in the community life, are the immediate results. It will perpetuate the love of the beautiful, lift our souls out of the rut of everyday work, the dull routine of our daily lives, so we may learn to know there is something worth having besides material wealth. To bring art closer to the people, to increase their love for it, is to benefit humanity.

Cites Good Influence.

"In the fall of last year we also had for 10 days what was termed a commercial art exhibit. Commercial art plays a large part in our lives, influencing our tastes and really inspiring us to see the beauty in our ordinary surroundings. Never before in this country has an exhibition of this magnitude and calibre been gathered together. Never before have advertisers been granted such a wonderful opportunity for seeing and studying the best there is in the realm of commercial art. Nationally-known artists sent their best work. Norman Rockwell, whose paintings often adorn front covers of the leading magazines, contributed several original paintings. Clarence Underwood sent a Palm Olive soap painting. Maud Faugel who has brought the Colgate company into its enormous prominence with her lovable children, was well represented. Many of the well-known artists, some 30 or more, sent their work. The display not only gave pleasure but instruction.

"Interest in this display of modern commercial art is widespread. These artists are doing the nation high service in giving to industry and business the golden touch of beauty. Taste on the part of the public is unconsciously acquired. Whatever may be the flower into which beauty ultimately expands, it has its roots in fitness and utility. A footstool may be beautiful although turned to common use, a picture is not necessarily beautiful because it is a picture, even though well done. The form and shape of the many household utensils, in china, glass, bronze and wood, the furniture, the colors used in every-day rugs, curtains and coverings, all may be and will be improved, all of which will go to elevate our tastes.

"Grecian art, which culminated in Athens, produced the noblest revelations of plastic beauty ever offered by human genius to the race of men. This love of art permeated their entire domestic life. The glory of the Greeks was that they created not only these marvellously beautiful statues and temples but their kitchen pots and pans, their vessels of clay, now grace our museums and private collections because of their beauty of design.

Plans Are Outlined.

"Commercial art is aiding us in our every day life and should be encouraged. Every southern city should have a yearly exhibit of commercial art. We propose having an annual display here. It is a forward movement whereby we will ultimately secure the better things, the more beautiful things in life, enriching and making fuller our own lives and contributing the true betterment of the generations to come.

"It is the lasting quality of art that appeals to us today. Art survives everything else. It creates a quality of emotion, the cultivation of a people that no money can purchase and time is powerless to destroy. While we may be justly proud of our material prosperity and success, our spiritual life is a higher and finer thing and should be fostered and encouraged in every way. Cultivation of good taste will not only benefit the individual but will materially aid in correcting many social and civic defects because what society likes, determines, in large measure, what society is. A constant presentation of the truly beautiful for a people to view and study will draw them up to a higher plane, to better living as well as to higher enjoyment. Beauty is no material thing. It cannot be copied. It is a sensation of pleasure in the minds of those who see and know and understand. This can be cultivated, directed and increased by means of museums of arts and crafts, which some of our cities now possess and enjoy.

Must Have "Spirit."

"Museums of art in themselves will not make a country or city artistic. They undoubtedly are a very great assistance. The art spirit, however, is necessary in the people themselves; where there is the art spirit, there will be splendid things to place in your museums.

"Aurora, Ill., is a case in point. With a small population and within the shadow of her towering neighbor, Chicago, it is the only city in the world where there is a community art center and a community art chest. It has more good pictures in proportion to its population than any city in this country.

"Art has become a factor in municipal life and its service is a great one. Its children can be taught the fact that by and through art their visual horizon may be widened, their taste improved and cultivated, their recreation made charming, their lives enriched, their condition bettered and their happiness increased. Art studies should be taught in our public schools. Culture to our children means to them just what it means in agriculture, a preparation of the soil for greater fertility.

Pleased at Unity.

"It is with pleasure I note the united effort of various art associations to suppress the hideous advertising signs, which stare at you from the railroad right of way, which despoil the scenic beauty of highways and have their effect upon the glorious scenery of this country. It is an infringement upon the rights of the people to the beauty of their landscapes and should be at least regulated, if not suppressed. Public opinion is being aroused slowly upon this subject and the ultimate result will be the removal of these objectionable advertising monstrosities and they will disappear when the advertisers find that they cause widespread resentment and are an evidence of poor judgment and worse taste. We need the spirit of cooperation upon this subject and all others which tend towards our artistic progress and development. This league can lend its voice and its assistance.

"All the matters I have touched upon and which go towards bettering American taste constitute problems which cannot be solved by timid indecision or stagnant hesitation. They call for a forward and active movement, educational in character, which our league is in a position to aid, encourage and support.

"I am glad to acknowledge the receipt of a recent communication in regard to action taken by the art division of the General Federation of Women's Clubs in America. It is the intention of this large and splendid body of women to begin at once to place paintings, statues and bronzes by living American artists in the homes and especially in the public schools of the United States. This is to stimulate interest in American art and in American artists. No country on earth has done so little for its artists and as a consequence no country is regarded in the world's judgment as being more material in its views and aspirations than ours.

People Love Art.

"We must not conclude that our people have no spiritual desires and no love for the beautiful. In most of us there is an inarticulate, undefined longing for the beautiful things of this world. The souls of many keenly feel the need of something wholly different from material aims, it is the craving for beauty which, when properly directed, will flood their lives with light and color, widening their narrow confines and making life itself richer, fuller and more satisfying.

"Long before the Christian era it had been known that no people can have a great art unless men of ability and cultivation regard art as an end in itself, with rewards of its own, which cannot be measured by money, yet this country has done nothing to preserve for posterity in an artistic way the stupendous war through which we have recently passed. Not one great painting to tell our children and their children of this period in our history when war enveloped the world in a whirlwind of destruction. England and France have not been so neglectful. In both countries there are splendid paintings commemorative of certain events during the world's war. We are probably the most stupid nation in the world in respect to preserving for the country pictorial records of great historical events. Doubtless foresight in these matters comes late in the life of a democracy.

"Sooner or later we must, as a government, recognize the power and significance of art in interpreting life and in perpetuating noble phases of our history. The recognition should come before it is accompanied by vain regrets. We are the last of the great countries to understand that pictorial transcription of national effort in the crises of our country's life will be more greatly valued by posterity than material accumulation of the world's wealth.

Discusses Timidity.

"There exists among a large class of society a peculiar timidity in regard to exhibits of paintings of the nude. It is a mental mixture of hypocrisy with some, mock modesty with others, self-consciousness with others still and salacious thought with a few, which cause these people to object to the nude in art. This can be cured by a judicious display of such pictures and by lectures on this subject by artists or persons informed upon the matter. There is nothing more beautiful than a splendid picture of the nude human body when bathed in the color of the atmosphere surrounding it, luminous and warm in its own color. Not only among artists but among all people we should develop a greater and proper respect for the human body. When we respect the nude we will no longer have any shame about it.

"It is a subject of regret but true that among the many who could be of great service towards helping the artistic development of the people, there are very few who regard art as an educational factor, as a social benefit, or a source of moral elevation. This class in society who have accumulated wealth are willing to lend their financial aid and their time to charitable or educational purposes, but do not manifest any belief in the dignity and far-reaching effect of art among the broadening influences which have widened the scope of educational training. Today any education is incomplete which does not include the cultivation of the faculties to feel and appreciate what is beautiful in art and nature. We should strive to encourage the training of every one of the capacities with which the individual is endowed.

The Love Is a "Gift."

"There are few things more conducive to discontent and actual unhappiness than the possession of qualities which are ignored, repressed or denied expression. To feel, to appreciate, to understand the beauty of nature and of art is one of the greatest gifts that can be given to any one on his way through life. Many of us have been given this gift at our birth but we have thrown it away or starved it by neglect because in the struggle for material success we felt it a drawback rather than an assistance. Could we but have known the joy and happiness we carelessly threw away!

"There are very few utterly blind to the beauties and charm of nature. To me the mountains in all their serenity and strength, 'the sapphire splendor of the sparkling sea,' are God made manifest in nature. What is art after all but man's passionate desire to drag the truth out of life in many ways, as God does it for us in the country. The painter's art is drenched in the colors of human life, immeasurably responsive, bountifully rewarding.

"Art, however, is a reality. Let us not forget that. Many travel paths that lead nowhere. They are mere dreamers for whom art is a creed, not a craft, and they never advance anything but ideas, in themselves rarely valuable. Let us then endeavor to perpetuate and enlarge the artistic spirit among the people by cooperation and intelligent effort and attempt to give comprehensive expression, definite aim and systematic guidance to what has been heretofore mainly indeterminate inspiration, sporadic and scattered effort."

MRS. H. G. JEFFERIES DIES AT AUGUSTA

Augusta, Ga., April 12.—(Special.) Mrs. Harriet Gould Jefferies, one of Augusta's most prominent and beloved women, died at an early hour this morning at her residence on Greene street, after an illness of about 10 days. Mrs. Jefferies had not been in good health for some years but was out and about as usual until a short time ago when she suffered a stroke of paralysis, and from the first it was realized that her condition was critical.

The news of her death will bring sorrow to countless friends throughout the community where she had lived her long and honored life, for she was known and loved by both old and young.

She is survived by one son, James Jefferies, two grandchildren, Miss Hattie Gould Jefferies and Harry Jefferies. She is an aunt of Thomas Barrett, Sr., of Augusta.

She was widely connected and belonged to one of the oldest and most prominent families in Georgia. Mrs. Jefferies was the daughter of the late Mrs. Harriet Barrett Gould and Judge James Gardner Gould. She lived all her life in Augusta and had, since her girlhood, been a leading spirit in the social, civic, literary, patriotic and religious activities of the community.

She was one of the most active and prominent members of the Daughters of the American Revolution in the south. She was instrumental in acquiring Meadow Garden, the home of George Walton, and had been active and deeply interested in its upkeep.

One of the most treasured belongings of the Augusta chapter is a life-size portrait of Mrs. Jefferies that adorns the walls of this historic place. She had been registrar of the chapter for years and many times offered the regency which she would not accept.

AUSTRALIANS HOPE TO HEAR AMERICAN PROGRAM BY RADIO

New York, April 12.—All Australia will "listen in" on the United States next Thursday, April 16, it is expected, when a special test will be made to determine what happens to radio waves passing across the equator, coming under the influence of the equinoxes.

Selected American stations from the Atlantic to the Pacific will broadcast from 4 to 6 a. m., Eastern standard time, corresponding to 7 to 9 p. m, Melbourne time, when Australian stations will be silent. Arrangements for the test have been made by cable by the National Association of Broadcasters in this country with the Broadcasting League of Australia, it was announced today.

Sir George Barlow, Australian scientist, is one of the chief supporters of the tests in that country. He believes that the equinox, the astronomical factor for the changes of the earth's plane as it revolves around the sun, and the equator, have an important relation to radio waves which this test will show.

Each of the American senders is to be identified by signals sounded at quarter-hour intervals.

ALBANY PLANS TO PAVE FIFTY CITY BLOCKS

Albany, Ga., April 12.—(Special.) An extensive street paving plan for the year now seems certain of adoption by Albany. The city commission has approved a program including more than 40 blocks, and petitions are now being circulated by property owners will, it is indicated, increase the number to 50 or more.

The work would be done under the baby bond plan, the property owners paying for paving in front of their property and the city paving street intersections and caring for frontage on schools and other public buildings.

Ordinances for putting the project into operation are expected to be adopted at once.

Georgia Teachers Urged To Attend Education Meet

A final call to all teachers, boards of trustees, superintendents and other educators throughout the state, asking their attendance at the annual meeting of the Georgia Education association, in Macon this week, was issued Saturday by Willis A. Sutton, president of the state association and superintendent of Atlanta schools.

In his statement, Mr. Sutton outlined work to be taken up at the convention, which is expected to formulate a definite policy for an educational program during the next two years.

In addition to the Georgia Education association, the following organizations will hold conventions at Macon this week, in conjunction with that of the state body: State and county school officials, Parent-Teachers' associations, state council of education and the legislative committee of the Georgia Education association.

Sutton's Statement.

Following is the statement issued Saturday by Mr. Sutton, outlining matters to be taken up at the sessions:

To the People of Georgia: The Georgia Education association and allied associations are holding their annual meetings at Macon this week. Unusual importance must be attached to this meeting of those organizations due to the fact that the legislature meets in June and does not meet again until 1927. Educational progress in Georgia has been marked and steady. Due appreciation should be given to former state superintendents and the present state superintendent of education for their efforts in furthering the cause of the common schools and the institutions of higher learning. Those continually finding fault with Georgia and her institutions are not the best and greatest friends of the state. Much has been accomplished through private and public institutions, for all of which a loyal state is deeply grateful. But much remains to be done.

As president of the Georgia Education association, I wish to urge upon every man and woman interested in education in the state to meet with some one of these educational organizations and assist us in formulating an educational policy which shall place Georgia in the front rank of the states of the union. Let us have representatives from every section and from every type of institution in the state. The common schools of the state cannot forget or fail to be interested in the institutions of higher learning. Neither can the institutions of higher learning fail to be interested in the common schools. There should be no groups, no blocs, no coterie of institutions working for the welfare of any one school or group of schools. There must be a united front.

The university system must be cared for in all of its branches. The university proper at Athens, Georgia Tech at Atlanta, the normal schools and agricultural schools, the colleges for teacher training, and all others must be provided for in one comprehensive program. Along with these and of even greater importance comes the great common school and high school system of the state. A common interest binds each and all together. Let each and all be represented.

Neither can the private schools of the state be unmindful of the state educational system. Upon the growth of the common schools and the high schools depends the growth of the colleges and universities of Georgia, be they private or public institutions.

The business colleges and special schools of the state are likewise interested in general education. A cordial invitation is extended to each of them to send representatives to the Georgia Education association. A legislative committee composed of representative citizens from the entire state will meet Wednesday afternoon at 6 o'clock at the Dempsey hotel, and will discuss all phases of the educational system of the state with an effort to assist the state superintendent to outline a comprehensive program.

At this meeting all phases of education should be discussed and it is hoped that a program can be arranged to be presented to the Georgia Education association.

It is imperative that every man and woman interested in education attend these meetings at Macon. Let us get behind the governor, and the commission which he has appointed and let the entire state rally to the call of education.

Will Atlanta Indorse Safety Movement Like Other Cities?

A recent survey made by the American Automobile association revealed that there is urgent need of a national automobile brake code as present state laws do not adequately provide for uniform brake tests.

Officially inaugurated in 1923, under the leadership of Marcus Dow, president of the national safety council, this attempt to conserve human lives and property has been encouraged by many allied councils, state motor registrars, automobile clubs, traffic experts, police chiefs, etc., in more than 275 cities.

Today the necessity of adequate brake inspection ordinances is being kept before the motoring public by such organizations as the American Automobile association, International Bureau of Traffic Police, National Safety council, National Automobile Chamber of Commerce and scores of other organizations throughout the country.

In this connection may be mentioned the deserving efforts of the Atlanta Automobile association and allied organizations, the Atlanta Safety council and the Atlanta Motor club, which have been working zealously toward an ordinance with teeth in it that will effectively reduce Atlanta's most unfavorable comparative list of accidents, due to faulty automobile brakes. Like the stop-light signals and boulevard ordinances, this is a piece of deserving, urgent and practical legislation that has become a necessity to efficient traffic regulation in Atlanta.

The Brake Service Shop at 52 Houston street, a business specializing on brakes alone, has given out some interesting facts relative to the question of automobile brakes in Atlanta. This company employs the most skilled mechanics available along with the more recent and latest model electric machinery for service on automobile brakes. They attribute practically all accidents resulting from poor brakes to four causes, namely: Worn linings, faulty adjustment, the split rivet or hand method of installing lining, resulting in cut and ridged drums and the rear axle housing loose on spring shackles, a serious fault probably unnoticed by two-thirds of the mechanics giving service on automobile brakes.

The Brake Service Shop does a [illegible] companies owning fleets of cars or trucks and expresses the opinion that three-fourths of the accidents resulting between trucks or cars operated by companies and those of private individuals are due to faulty brakes on the privately-owned car, as cases of negligence in attention to brakes are rare on the brake bands sent for relining by companies while two-thirds of those privately owned have waited far too long in having service on the brakes.

Faulty adjustment is one of the big factors in motor accidents and, according to the Brake Service Shop 65 per cent of the brake service on an automobile is proper adjustment after relining. This fault is far more common than is generally known because it requires a mechanic who knows his business to give a satisfactory adjustment. The Brake Service Shop renders adjustment and inspection service free of charge, this service alone, due to many calls, consuming much of one mechanic's time during a day.

Atlanta Firm Has Many Men Busy at Work in Southeast

There is a bridge construction firm out across from Fort McPherson that while they do not seem to make much noise in the everyday gift of Atlanta's busy industrial affairs, yet they are the biggest of their kind in the south.

This firm is the Austin Bridge company, and while there are only about 100 men seen about the local plant, there are several traveling crews busy somewhere between the Mississippi and the Potomac rivers and more than $250,000 is paid out to these men annually from the Lee street office.

Fine Port Buildings.

One crew recently constructed the port utilities pier sheds at Charleston, S. C. That is a nice piece of work and required something over 450 tons of steel to complete. The people of Charleston are very proud of their pier sheds, as they mean much to the shipping industry of that old quaint city.

Big Bridge Over Pee Dee.

A large force of men are now erecting a fine steel bridge over the great Pee Dee river between Marion and Florence counties, South Carolina, that the Austin Bridge company won the contract for from several other bridge companies.

Federal Aid Project.

Another crew is erecting a big bridge over the Saluda river six or seven miles out from Greenville, South Carolina. This is a federal aid project and one that the people of Greenville and vicinity are very much interested in, and its progress will be watched with much interest.

Mississippi Work Going On.

Two more crews are out in Mississippi, one putting a bridge across at Bude in Franklin county and another doing the same in Lowndes county, and both of these bridges will be a credit to their respective communities.

Oglethorpe Hall Nice Work.

Still another crew is out at Oglethorpe university building Lupton hall, which is moving nicely along and will be completed in the very near future.

And here in Atlanta another force is building for the Conking Tin Plate company a large warehouse on Moore street, and while bridge work is their specialty, they make and erect anything of fabricated steel and iron.

Traveling Crews Look to Atlanta.

To the man out on the river banks or building sites the Atlanta office and plant is the guiding hand, supply depot and pay office and he knows that if the engineers, draughtsmen and shop men are right, and they must be right before material is put aboard cars, he and his fellows will span the river no matter how wide or deep it may be.

Freight Bureau Big Help.

The secretary-treasurer, R. C. Clonts, stated Saturday that in addition to Atlanta's ideal geographical location the Atlanta freight bureau was an important factor in helping them secure contracts as their material being so heavy, in close bidding upon some of these projects the matter of freight was a very important factor and much credit is due this Atlanta freight bureau for the good work they are doing for the heavy shippers.

Atlanta One of America's Leading Awning Centers

Every reason that can be given for the cotton mills of New England moving south can be also applied to the advantage of those industries that are already located in this part of the country as it is a well-known fact that the south is producing the greater part of the raw material that this country is making into finished products.

Take the cotton industry as an illustration. No one will question that if a New England mill moves into this section where the cotton can be seen growing from the mill windows that they can make a finished product less than they can if they have to pay the freight on the cotton 1,000 miles or more, providing, of course, that the other expenses are about the same, and even here the mild climate of the south is a big saving in mill operating expenses.

When it comes to making a product of canvas and duck goods then it is indisputable that the makers of this class of goods have a big advantage over northern or western makers of the same line of goods and this is one of the main reasons that the several tent and awning factories in and around Atlanta are putting Atlanta on the map as one of the large tent and awning centers of the country.

Probably no firm in the country enjoys a more enviable reputation in the tent and awning business than the M. D. Smith company, of Atlanta and Dalton, who are the pioneers in the south in this line, ever mindful of the fact that they were making tents and awnings from the raw material growing in their door yard as it were, they were able to secure many contracts over many eastern and northern firms.

This firm just gave an order to a Rome firm for 50,000 yards of 8-ounce standard duck. Supposing a firm 1,000 miles or more away bought this same kind of duck from these Rome or Dalton mills, and they are famous for this class of goods; could a Georgia, Florida or Alabama man reasonably expect to get a big tent, awning, tarpaulin or other heavy piece of canvas goods that the freight had to be paid on both ways, as cheap as he could when bought in Atlanta?

When it comes to the matter of equipment, facilities and skilled workmen the M. D. Smith company ranks with the best of them for they are ever abreast of, and at times a little ahead of the times. Just at present in their paint striping department then can stripe more than 1,000 yards of duck an hour, which is going some and this is the result of having some special built machinery for this purpose.

Another special machine for waterproofing the different grades of cloth greatly facilitates matters, and due to how even this process is done, their many pleased customers speak well of the wearing qualities of their goods and especially is this so of the many gospel tents that they make every year.

This firm has always been the headquarters for gospel tents, of which they make all sizes and ship to all parts of the south and west. As they always have a big stock of standard sizes on hand they can ship on a few minutes' notice and most everybody knows that this firm will rent tents and camping outfits to reliable people.

WHERE WE GET NAME 'LAUNDRY' AS APPLIED TO DRYING CLOTHES

It probably would be interesting to many to know where we get the term laundry as applied to the washing of clothes, while there has been several different versions put forth the one giving the most credence is that away back in the 17th century, an English nobleman seeing the difficulty his servants were having in getting a suitable place to dry the clothes they were washing on the river bank suggested that if they brought them up to the house and spread them on the lawn they would dry quickly.

This was done as the master suggested and to the delight and surprise of the servants the clothes came out cleaner and whiter than any that they had heretofore done and thereafter they said to themselves that they would "lawndry" the clothes that they washed, and so the word was passed from one house to another that the "lawndried" clothes came out better than those that were hung on the bushes and trees.

Atlanta itself has a laundry that is now one of the pioneers in the American laundry world for notwithstanding that this industry is now ranking as one of the big businesses of the country it is only a little more than a half of a century old and the Troy Laundry of Houston street has been established close to 40 years.

This is a long time for the same people to be in the same line of business and they have seen many changes take place in the matter of equipment and deliveries and they themselves at times bringing forth some new device or appliance that would facilitate the work and then be adopted by their fellow laundrymen.

Business Notes

BY M. D. GLEASON

CALLAHAN IS IN ATLANTA.

You have seen folding beds, folding cots, folding doors, folding chairs, folding tents, folding umbrellas, folding cameras and numerous other folding things, but did you ever see a folding gas stove? If not, just look inside the door of the Frank Halfley's store, 109 Marietta street.

Here you will see one of the handiest and most unique gas appliances you ever saw, and the great beauty about this gas stove is that you can cook anything upon this stove that you can on any other gas stove, and in less than a minute you can fold it up out of the way.

INVENTED BY OLD BALL PLAYER.

This folding gas stove was designed and patented by Charles W. Callahan, former big league baseball pitcher, and is the only one of its kind on the market, and was especially designed for small kitchens and kitchenettes and other places where space is very limited.

It is sturdy in construction, has four burners, three are ordinary in size and one is a giant burner that will cook a meal in a hurry, and the oven will bake what you want when you want any baking done.

MAKES A TABLE WHEN NEEDED.

The top of the Callahan stove when not in use can be used for all the purposes that a small sturdy table can be used for as a beautiful enamel cover completely covers the burners when not in use and when not needed as a stove it can be made into a convenient table or folded up against the wall out of the way subject to the convenience of the housewife.

MADE BY WELSBACH.

This Callanahan stove is by no means limited to kitchens, but can be installed wherever a gas connection can be made and can be installed upon upper floors, or the children's room, and is especially good for doctors or dentists' offices, laboratories and any other place where hot or boiling water, glue or chemicals may be needed.

Mr. Callahan is stopping at the Piedmont and is highly pleased with the many orders Hafley has sent in the past 30 days of this stove, which is made by the Welsbach company of Gloucester City, N. J.

BEAUTIFUL WATER HEATER.

Mr. Callahan also represents the Welsbach many lines and has placed many of them with Hafley, who is having a splendid run on the Welsbach radiant gas heaters and the Welsbach automatic storage water heater. This Welsbach water heater is the nicest and most convenient hot water heater on the market—even the storage tank is beautifully finished and all the fittings are of polished brass that makes this water tank an attractive addition to its surroundings, and if you are even thinking of putting in a hot water appliance you should see this Welsbach first.

CENTRAL AVE. FIRM SAVING CUSTOMERS MUCH MONEY

Atlanta has a supply firm that is growing by leaps and bounds on account of the splendid service that they are rendering the public not only here in Atlanta but in the neighboring cities and towns as well.

This is the Pickert Plumbing and Supply company of 117-119 Central avenue, who have a large four-story building chuck full to the doors of plumbing and electrical supplies, and as they buy in great quantities they sell at greatly reduced prices to any and everybody that may want anything in these lines.

The great buying power and car lot receipts enables them to get these supplies at very close prices and they in turn give their customers the opportunity to get these materials at prices much less than they can get them elsewhere.

This then provides the opportunity for everybody that may want to have done any plumbing or electrical job to buy the materials at a very close price and do the work themselves or have a regular licensed man do it for them.

The Pickert Plumbing and Supply company is ever ready to supply any firm or plumbing shop, no matter how large or small, with a pound, or ton, or car load of material at short notice and the larger shops in Atlanta and Georgia cities are finding them a very accommodating firm to deal with.

This firm delivers to all parts of Atlanta and near-by towns and a phone call will get you at once some long-wanted plumbing or electrical supply in a very few minutes.

The officials of this company will take pleasure in showing their beautiful show room where everything that is the very latest in the electrical and plumbing line may be seen

Six Girls and Five Boys Are Winners in Georgia District Oratory Meets

Victors in Competition Sponsored by Constitution Scheduled To Meet in Atlanta April 23.

Six girls and five boys were the winners in eleven of the twelve district oratorical contests held last week in the state. The report from one district, the eleventh, has not yet been received.

Each of these prize winners was awarded $15 in gold, given by The Constitution and will come to Atlanta April 23 to compete for the state championship and for two prizes of $100 and $20 awarded by this paper. The orations delivered in all contests were original with each contestant and all were based upon the federal constitution. The same speeches will be delivered by the district winners when they come to Atlanta for the state contest.

These oratorical contests are part of the national contest sponsored by the American Bar association, to determine the champion high school orators of America for 1925 and to award seven prizes, ranging from $2,000 to $300 in value.

In Georgia, the preliminary state contests are sponsored by The Constitution and the state High School association.

Zone Contest in Nashville.

Georgia is in the fourth national zone, the nation being divided into seven zones for the purposes of this contest. The Georgia winner at the Atlanta meet on April 23 will go to Nashville on May 1, these to meet the winners from other states in this zone to decide the zonal championship and the honor of representing the zone in the national finals. Other states in this zone include Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama and Tennessee.

At the state finals in Atlanta on April 23, Governor Walker will preside. The contest will be held in the house of representatives at the state capitol and three members of the state supreme court will act as judges. They are Associate Justices S. Price Gilbert, Marcus W. Beck and H. Warner Hill.

Winners in Districts.

The winners in the eleven district contests which have been reported are: First district, Frank Skinner, of Waynesboro High school; second district, Lillian Johnson, of Albany High; third district, Hugh Gibson, of Plains High; fourth district, Audrey Lauderdale, of LaGrange High; fifth district, Helen Braill, of Atlanta Girls' High; sixth district, Paul Wullenweider, of Fayetteville High; seventh district, Lucy Sloan, of Rome High; eighth district, Albert G. INFIDELITY CHARGE HURLED AT O'DAY BY HIS YOUNG WIFE

Reno, Nev., April 12.—Marion Jefferson O'Day, granddaughter of Joseph Jefferson, late American actor, has been divorced here from John O'Day, heir to the Daniel O'Day oil millons.

Alimony was fixed at $825 per month when Judge George A. Bartlett found O'Day to be receiving an annual income of $25,000. By the will of Daniel O'Day, formerly an official of the Standard Oil company of New York, the son will not receive control of the principal until he reaches the age of 40.

O'Day, who is now in Paris, is charged with infidelity. They were married at Deal, N. J., June 21, 1919. Mrs. O'Day was allowed to resume her maiden name of Marion Jefferson.

BANK AT THOMASTON OBSERVES BIRTHDAY

Thomaston, Ga., April 12.—(Special.)—The officers of the Upson Banking Trust & Company have celebrated with a splendid luncheon its twenty-fifth anniversary. This bank has steadily grown until it is now one of the strongest institutions in the state in a city this size.

The president, S. Y. Pruitt, and cashier, L. P. Davis, with other officers, are receiving many congratulations on the success of the institution.

This bank has doubled its capital once and now has a large surplus, as well as having paid an annual dividend every year.

EARL BALFOUR SAILS TO VISIT ALEXANDRIA

Beirut, Syria, April 12.—The steamer Sphinx sailed today for Alexandria with the Earl of Balfour, who recently visited the Holy Land, as a passenger. There were no untoward demonstrations.

It is officially announced that 12 gendarmes were wounded and one rioter killed in the disturbances in Damascus, when Lord Balfour was there last week.

ELKS OF GEORGIA TO MEET IN SAVANNAH

Savannah, Ga., April 12.—Leaders of Elkdom assert that approximately 1,000 Elks and their ladies from all sections of Georgia, South Carolina and Florida will be in attendance at the annual convention of the Georgia Elks' association, which convenes in Savannah June 10-12. This gathering, it is said, will be one of the largest state conventions held in the port city in several years. Especial interest is attached to the meeting, due to the fact that Grand Exalted Ruler John G. Price, of Columbus, Ohio, head of the order in the United States, will be the guest of honor. Savannah is making elaborate preparations for the entertainment of the delegates.

Somewhat of a national aspect is given the convention in the tri-state area following definite arrangements to receive the grand exalted ruler, who will make a special trip to Savannah, and a few weeks later will preside at the national convention at Portland, Ore. It will mark the first visit of Mr. Price to this city and he will be welcomed by city and county officials in addition to officers of the state association and local lodge. Special invitations have been sent to Elks in South Carolina and Florida to meet their leader.

Mayor to Welcome.

Mayor Hull will welcome the Elk head to Savannah in an address at the municipal auditorium on the evening of June 10. This will be a community gathering, at which local and visiting Elks and the general public will be invited to hear him speak on a national topic, and likely will be followed by one or more prominent Georgia Elks.

On June 11 the business session will convene at 10 o'clock for committee reports and other matters, while that afternoon a big parade will be held, reviewed by Grand Exalted Ruler Price, a half holiday to be observed for the demonstration on proclamation of the mayor. In the evening a beautiful tableau initiation will be held at the auditorium, and later a reception to the grand exalted ruler and visiting officers, to be followed by a grand ball.

Following the morning business session on Friday, June 12, the Elks will be given a ride over Victory drive, Savannah's million-dollar highway to the sea, and will spend the afternoon and evening at Tybee in varied entertainment. A seashore dinner, bathing and beach games, a bathing beauty contest, and grand ball at Hotel Tybee in the evening will cap the events. During that morning the women attending the convention will be entertained with automobile rides about the city and county and will be given an inspection tour of the large sugar refinery.

Special attractions at Tybee for Saturday and Sunday are being arranged for Elks' enjoyment at the beach following the convention, and visiting Elks will receive warm welcome there. Reduced railroad rates will be effective on all lines leading to Savannah.

Attractive Program.

A handsome souvenir program with a pictorial review of Savannah's historic and scenic beauty spots, and photographs of this city's 700 Elks is being compiled by John N. Davis, of Savannah, well known in Georgia Elk circles.

The general committee is headed by Colonel W. L. Grayson, past exalted ruler of Savannah lodge. Officials of the state association who will be present are: G. P. Maggioni, president, Savannah; vice presidents, Al H. Martin, Atlanta; E. Foster Brigham, Augusta; Jesse Harris, Macon; W. E. Page, Columbus; L. Ludwig, Brunswick; secretary and treasurer, T. B. Lamar, Columbus, district deputy for south Georgia, Colonel R. L. Colding, Savannah; district deputy for north Georgia, E. F. Brigham.

Large Fertilizer Sale Indicates All-Cotton Crop Being Planted

Louisville, Ga., April 12.—(Special.)—The tonnage of guano being carried out of Louisville this season would indicate a larger cotton crop than safety would warrant, according to leading men who are watching the farming policy for the year 1925. These men are warning against such policy, which may spell disaster, if an all-cotton crop is relied on to the neglect of other crops.

For instance, it is thought that many of the large farmers in this county are swinging from peanuts this year, because they failed to get much out of this product last year.

Bankers and others are urging the farmers not to plant all cotton.

TRIAL OF 8 MEN IN STEWART CASE

Tallapoosa, Ga., April 12.—(Special.)—Haralson county people are showing a lively interest in the approaching trials of eight men charged with murder growing out of the slaying of Mrs. Robert Stewart, at Drakestown, last November, the cases being scheduled for trial at the county seat during the week of April 20.

Trial of Jeff Henderson, one of the defendants arrested immediately after the killing of the wife of the Methodist minister by a band of men who attempted to abduct the preacher, was held in January and he was acquitted.

Attorneys for the state and defense have been busy with their cases during the last few weeks, special investigators have been at work since the acquittal of the first defendant and some startling developments are looked for when the other men are placed on trial for their lives.

ANTI-TUBERCULOSIS VICTORY FORESEEN IN NEXT FEW YEARS

Cleveland, Ohio, April 12.—An army of scientists is being mobilized against tuberculosis and word of victory may be expected within the next few years.

That was the announcement today of Professor Florence R. Sabin, of Johns Hopkins university, Baltimore, and president of the American Association of Anatomists, which concluded its 41st meeting today.

"The Anti-Tuberculosis society has invited groups of research workers to attack the age-old problem," she said. "Groups of chemists and bacteriologists are associating themselves to carry on the fight. Gains made against the disease in the last 20 years offer every hope that tuberculosis some day will be as well controlled as smallpox is."

Professor Sabin said the most immediate work of students in preventive medicine is on cancer cells and "nutrition" diseases.

When Better Automobiles Are Built, Buick Will Build Them

No. 1

Question: Why are more women driving Buicks than any other make of six-cylinder car?

Answer: One reason is the striking appearance of this famous motor car. Then comes Buick dependability. A woman knows when she starts out with her Buick that she will "get there and back." Other reasons are—the comfort in driving a Buick—the velvet clutch action, easy steering; then the power and quietness of Buick's Valve-in-Head engine and the safety of Buick mechanical four-wheel brakes.

Major Leagues Resting, Waiting for Umps' Signal

Paschal Will Wear Ruth's Uniform in Game Tuesday; Hospital List Is Large

New York, April 12.—(By the Associated Press.)—The baseball players of sixteen major league teams shelved their training clothes tonight, after a month and a half of strenuous preparations, and sat back to rest for the 1925 revival of that American institution—opening day.

The New York Giants, winners of the National league honors for the past four years and the Yankees, winners in 1921, 1922 and 1923, completed their exhibition schedule today with games with Washington and Brooklyn respectively and now will enjoy one day of rest before the curtain ascends on the season.

The Yankees will enter the season minus their big gun—Babe Ruth—but his absence from the game is not expected to dampen the ardor of the Yanks. The Giants also are handicapped by injuries and illness but a week is expected to see the complete strength of both teams mobilized for the fight which will carry the teams up until the first of October.

Paschal for Ruth.

Ruth still lies in the hospital, where he is recovering from indigestion and influenza, while Frisch's injured foot is expected to keep him on the side lines. The gaps will be filled by recruits. In Ruth's place in the outfield will appear the promising Ben Paschal, whose hard-hitting and clever fielding has colored many exhibition games in the south while McGraw is hopeful that young Lindstrom will be available for second base. Should he be still too lame to play, either Young or Kelly will be used.

The uncertain arrangement of McGraw's infield tonight finds only one player sure of his berth. This is Travis Jackson at shortstop, although Heinie Groh while not yet in satisfactory physical condition, is almost certain to take his accustomed place at third. If Kelly is shifted to either second or third, Terry will go to first base. Should Young be drawn from outfield McGraw will call upon Walker, Meusel and Wilson to man the outer defenses.

The Yankees will be on their home field for the season's start and will have as opponents last year's world champions, the Washington Senators The Giants will make their start in Boston, opposing the Braves.

With the acquisition of Pitcher Bert Thormahlen, the former Yankee, the Robins will be setting forth on the National league journey in much better condition than was expected a week ago. The condition of Thormahlen, who had a good year last summer in the Texas league with Dallas, compensates Manager Wilbert Robinson for the loss of Pitcher Doak, who refused a $15,000 contract to go into business.

Twirling Speculation.

Fandom was speculating tonight as to what twirlers would be dispatched to the mound for the opening day exhibition by the three metropolitan teams. It is almost a surety that Urban Shocker, the twirler obtained from the St. Louis Browns in exchange for Bush, Gaston and Girard, will start on the mound for the Yankees against the world's champions.

Art Nehf, McGraw's little left hander, likely will draw the assignment for the Giants, while "Dazzy" Vance, the National league "most valuable player" last season, is almost a sure bet to serve them up for the Dodgers.

At Chicago—Ernest C. Quigley, Charles Moran, Frank Wilson.

At Cincinnati — Henry O'Day, Charles Pfirman, James Monroe Sweeney.

At Brooklyn—Charles Higler, Robert Hart, Pete McLaughlin.

At Boston—William Klem, Harry McCormick.

REDS DISPLAY LAST YEAR'S STRENGTH

Cincinnati, April 12.—(By the Associated Press.)—The Cincinnati Reds embark on the 1925 championship season with a club whose strength is virtually the same as that which carried them to fourth place last year.

The shade of difference favoring this spring's outfit is due to the smoothly-working quartet of infielders, Bressler, Critz, Pinelli and Caveney, generally conceded to rank with the best in the league and due to bear the brunt of the season.

Defensively that infield promises much and Bressler and Pinelli are consistently effective hitters.

Otherwise the Reds look much as they did in the midst of the 1924 scramble. Manager Jack Hendricks has at his disposal the same assemblage of capable pitching material, Mays, Rixey, Donohue and Benton went last summer's route in good fashion and, with good reserve material available for the rough spots, should be able to handle the season.

The outfield, headed by Captain Eddie Rousch, is excellent. But the Reds are starting the race with an admitted deficiency in reserves. In Setzman and Walker, Hendricks has two fast, clean-hitting outfielders and a valuable addition to the batting order in Elmer Smith.

Barring difficulties, Hargrave and Wingo are amply capable of handling the work behind the plate and came back from the training season in fine condition.

The Reds returned from the south in high spirits and despite the absence of reserve strength, the morale of the club is just good enough to indicate the Reds may better their season-end post of 1924.

EMORY HOLDS MEET TODAY

Emory will hold its annual track and field meet this afternoon, in which all men in the university are eligible to compete. Individual scores will be kept and points will be credited to the organizations to which the point-winners belong.

Results of this test will aid the coaches in deciding the men who will represent Emory in the intercollegiate track mets which the Emory team is scheduled to enter. It will also serve to give an indication of how Emory stands with relation to other colleges and universities.

Classes and schools in the university will compete against each other on the basis of total points scored in this meet. The scores of fraternities, clubs and other organizations will also be kept.

O'KEEFE SEEKS CONSTITUTION PIN

The girls of the O'Keefe Junior High school will hold an athletic meet Wednesday to try for a Constitution University of Georgia athletic pin. About 200 girls will participate in the trials Wednesday and the boys meet will be held by that school at a later date.

The pin, which is given to schools in Georgia meeting certain athletic requirements, is awarded by Clark Howell, editor of The Constitution, through the University of Georgia. The test is open to any high school in the state.

SUNSPERO COPS TIA JUANA CUP

San Diego, Cal., April 12.—Sunspero, owned by the Laorea stable, today won the Tia Juana cup of two miles, final stake event on the winter program at the Tia Juana track, near here. Allover, from the string of C. B. Irwin, was second with Blarney Stone third, and Spic and Span fourth. Time for the race was 3:27 3-5, three and three-fifths seconds slower than the time made last year by Little Chief, which finished last today, pulled up and lame.

FIT STUDY TO CHILD ADVISES EDUCATOR

Athens, Ga., April 12.—(Special.) It is just as absurd and far more harmful to have a uniform system of schooling for all children as to force everyone, long and tall, fat and thin, to wear the same size clothes, Dr. Carleton W. Washburne, of Chicago, said to Athenians this week.

Dr. Washburne is principal of the public elementary schools at Winnetka, Ill., and world famous for his system of individual education. He believes in fitting the curriculum to the child. He delivered two addresses here.

SANDLOT BALL STARTS HERE THIS WEEK

BY DAVID JENKINS.

Just two days after the Crackers open their baseball season at home the Atlanta sand-lot baseball performers, better known as the amateurs, are scheduled to open their season. This date as usual falls on Saturday, the only day they have the opportunity to play.

Every league except the Sunday school organizations will begin the season's grind, the opening of this league to take place May 2. Many new faces and new teams are expected to be seen among the various leagues.

The City league, an eight-club society, will again be in operation. The Georgia Railway & Power company, which team captured the pennant for the past three years, will have its second team entered, as their first aggregation will be among the red clay hills of north Georgia, combating teams of that section.

The Commodore Feds had a team in this league last season, but have not been placed in it this year, as they cannot come out of the prison grounds to play, and that would conflict with the schedule.

Stewart avenue, Federal Reserve, Pep Class I. C. S., Brown Mill and Peachtree Road Presbyterian are the teams entered in the royal league that will kick the lid off the schedule this coming Saturday afternoon.

The Spalding league has been formed and will also begin the playing season Saturday.

The City Amateur Baseball league will open its season April 18 and will close September 5, according to announcement of the league officials yesterday after the drafting of the schedule.

The schedule as announced yesterday for the entire season is as follows:

SOX RIDE HIGH; CUBS HURT BY INJURIES

Chicago, April 12.—(By the Associated Press.)—Sparkling prospects for the White Sox and a staggering handicap of injuries for the Cubs is the opening day outlook for Chicago's two major league baseball teams.

With Eddie Collins, for almost 20 years star second baseman of the American league as manager, the morale of the Sox has reached its highest pitch since the revelation of the 1919 world's series scandal wrecked the team.

On the northside, despite the big winter trade of players with Pittsburg, the Cubs open the season with Walter "Rabbit" Maranville, the star of the swap, disabled by a broken ankle and their infield plans wrecked. Grigsby, regular outfielder, will be on the sidelines besides the "Rabbit" with a broken collar-bone.

Charlie Grimm, ex-Pirate first sacker, and southpaw Wilbur Cooper, the other principal figures in the trade, are in fine form, and with Grover Cleveland Alexander, the pitching mainstay of the Cubs, fully recovered from his injured wrist of last season, the Cubs hope to be favored with effective twirling.

The White Sox pitching staff is little changed and their success may rest largely on the condition of the veterans, Red Faber and Charlie Robinson, who had a disappointing season last year. The supporting cast of boxmen, however, have had the benefit of another year of major league seasoning and Cecil Thurston hopes to better his last season record of ten victories in a row.

The weakness in the Sox line-up last fall at shortstop has been remedied by the signing of Ike Davis, a veteran from the Columbus American association team. The most promising recruit, Manager Collins believes, is Harris, a heavy-hitting outfielder from the Southern association.

When the Cubs lost the services of Maranville temporarily, they located McAuley, star of the Los Angeles Coast league team, to fill his place. Maranville plans to supplement McAuley's fielding by his presence on the coaching lines.

DIRIGIBLE'S EASTER FLIGHT POSTPONED BY STRONG WINDS

Lake Hurst, N. J., April 12.—Unfavorable winds, which whipped out of the northwest at the rate of 30 or 40 miles an hour, today forced officers of the naval air station to cancel the projected Easter flight of the dirigible Los Angeles.

Another attempt to remove the ship from her hangar will be made at dawn tomorrow, and if weather conditions are favorable the test trip will be made over New York city, as scheduled.

ROAD DELEGATES FOR BUENOS AIRES CONGRESS NAMED

Washington, April 12.—American participation in the Pan-American Road congress to be held in Buenos Aires next October, was formally announced today at the white house.

J. Walter Drake, assistant secretary of commerce, will act as chairman of the American delegation. The other members will be Charles M. Babcock, commissioner of highways in Minnesota; F. L. Bishop, dean of the School of Engineering at the University of Pittsburg; Representative William E. Hull, of Illinois; Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the United States Bureau of Public Roads; Frank Page, chairman of the North Carolina State Highway commission, and Dr. G. A. Sherwell, secretary of the Inter-American High commission.

Senators Will Present Series-Winners Tuesday

Washington, April 12.—The world champion Senators will go into the season's opening game Tuesday with the same lineup that wrested the title from the Giants last October, and confident that they will again lead the American league field. Four pitchers have been added to the roster and the reserve force has been strengthened, but otherwise the team is the same, even to its batting order.

After a slow start in the training grind, the Senators accelerated as the days passed and won a tie with the Giants in their 12 exhibition games. Slowness of the hurling staff to round into form and team weakness at the bat, so apparent in the early training games, appear to have been remedied considerably.

In Coveleskie, Reuther and Gregg, Manager Harris has added a veteran trio to his roster calculated to turn in a good proportion of victories. Walter Johnson, Zachary, Morgridge and Marberry, all heroes of the world series, remain in the fold and are reported ready for a strenuous campaign. Kelley, a recruit hurler, also has given excellent promise.

Injection of Young Blood Helps Both Boston Clubs

Boston, April 12.—Liberal injections of new and younger blood resulting in a 50 per cent better showing by both baseball clubs on the southern proving grounds this spring give promise that in the major league season opening Tuesday, Boston's cellar and near-cellar performances of recent years may be succeeded by an upward swing.

Lee Fohl, manager of the Red Sox, said his pitching will be probably better than a year ago and that the team's third base and shortstop defenses will be improved.

Manager Dave Bancroft, of the Braves, said:

"We have added youth and speed to our team in so many new positions that we are sure to be a more colorful, more interesting and, I hope, more successful team than last season when we finished last."

Six New Regulars.

The Braves will start six new regulars in the outfield and the infield and have little left to remind fans of the failures of other years. The new outfield includes Neis, of Brooklyn, in left; Harris, of the Piedmont league, in center, and Jim Welsh, who cost the Braves $50,000 when he came from Seattle, in right. In the infield Fred Lucas, former pitcher, is playing second, Marriott, from Mobile, is at third and Dick Burrus at first. Jess Barnes, Cooney, Genewich, Graham, Kamp, Marquard, Benton and McNamara are pitchers.

For virtually every berth, the Red Sox have mustered two men. Ernie Vach, of Dallas, is a notable addition in left field. Bill Rogell, of Salina, is fighting Connelly for second base. Ehmke will head the pitchers, who include Quinn, Ferguson, Ross, Wingfield, together with Ruffing and Lucey and Kallio, newcomers.

Mack Has $150,000 Battery For American League Race

Philadelphia, April 12.—Despite injuries to some of their players, both Philadelphia major league baseball teams are in good condition for the opening of the season. Both have added new players and are confident of improving their standing in the race for the pennants.

Connie Mack's Athletics will open the American league season in their renovated park. The visiting team will be the Boston Red Sox. The Athletics have added a new battery that is reputed to have cost $150,000. It is composed of "Lefty" Groves, from Baltimore, and Gordon Cochrane, from Portland.

To offset the injury to Joe Hauser, who broke his knee cap in the spring series with the Phillies, manager Mack has signed Jim Poole, of Portland. The American leaguers also have several rookies of promise, including Fox, a young catcher, Smith, a shortstop, and French and Bagwell, outfielders.

The Phillies also have several new men. Manager Fletcher is much impressed with the work of Huber at third and is planning to use Fonseca at second.

In the outfield, George Burns, formerly of the Giants and Reds, has won a permanent berth in the local lineup.

"I am confident that my team is better than last year's combination and hope to make a real fight for a first-division berth," said Fletcher, after winning the city title from the Athletics.

Connie Mack was rather reluctant to make predictions, but is looking forward to a good season. "Last year I figured on second place and was forced to be satisfied with a second-division berth," said Mack. "This year we are not making predictions, but we are planning to go out and win enough ball games to make the fans forget the years we spent in the cellar."

Rickey and Sisler Filled With Optimism On Chances

St. Louis, April 12.—Confidence and optimism are the dominant characteristics of St. Louis' two major league teams this season.

Strengthened by the addition of seasoned veterans obtained in trades, and by the promising performances of several youngsters, the Browns and Cardinals seem better fortified for this year's campaign than at any time previous.

While deprecating the absence of Bill Jacobson, a hold-out; George Sisler, manager of the Browns, believes that the improvement in four separate departments of his team will more than off-set the absence of his star centerfielder.

His pitching staff, Sisler believes, has been considerably strengthened by the acquisition of Joe Bush, Milton Gaston and Joe Giard, obtained from the New York Yankees this winter and by the improvement shown in the condition of other members of the staff. With the veteran Severeid, and the youngster, Dixon, alternating behind the bat, the Browns' manager believes he has a catching staff comparable to any, while the third base problem seems well taken care of by Robertson.

Then the improvement in Sisler's own condition is a source of gratification.

"Much stronger in a couple of positions and every man fit to go," was manager Branch Rickey's summation of the Cardinals this year. Rickey also believes he has the best club this season that he has had in many seasons.

Rickey pointed to the improvement in his catching and infield, while his pitching and outfield apparently is much stronger than last year.

The morale of his team also was pointed to by Rickey as a basis for his optimism

PARADE TO CLOSE DECATUR CLEAN-UP

Decatur, Ga., April 12.—(Special.) With all Decatur well into her clean-up work, and with the school girls and boys seduously working with an eye to a prize, the clean-up campaign committee and officers of the Decatur Woman's club are completing plans for making Tuesday, April 14, the final day of the campaign, a memorable one in the history of the city, according to Mrs. R. E. White, director of publicity of the campaign.

The event which officially closes the campaign is the big parade, featuring the schools in competition for the award offered the school making the best appearance, and at the same time most suggestive of the purposes of the campaign. This parade is under the management of W. Bayne Gibson, and will take place at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning, marching around courthouse square. It will be led by the Georgia Railway and Power company's band, generously donated for the purpose. Appropriately decorated cars will represent each Decatur organization.

Governor Walker and Mayor Sims have been invited to review the parade with Mayor G. Scott Candler.

BARTOW TO VOTE ON BOND ISSUE NEXT WEDNESDAY

Louisville, Ga., April 12.—(Special.)—The town of Bartow, this county, will vote Wednesday, April 15, on a bond issue of $50,000 to install an electric light system.

Dogs can not be landed in Great Britain unless a license has been previously obtained from the board of agriculture in London.

Thomaston Kiwanis Club Selects Club Member As "Buddy" for Year

Thomaston, Ga., April 12.—(Special.)—At the regular meeting last week of the Kiwanis club, each of the 50 members selected a "buddy" for the year. Farm Demonstrator Woodruff gave the names of about 50 of the school boys over the county who had joined the corn and cotton clubs and asked the members to draw the name of one of the boys and to make a "buddy" of him.

The Kiwanians will visit the boys, encourage them, have them at their homes and take an active interest in his work. There will be prizes offered for the best acre of cotton and best acre of corn over the county.

The Poultry club has over 100 members, mostly girls, the Pig club about 20.

Demonstrator Woodruff is visiting the farmers and doing much to enliven farming interest in the county.

TEACHER WHO CAUSED STUDENT STRIKE QUITS

Paris, April 12.—(By the Associated Press.)—Dr. George Scelle, professor of international law at the Sorbonne, has sent his resignation to the minister of education, who accepted it.

The appointment of Dr. George Scelle to the chair of international law at the Sorbonne and the insistence by the Herriot government that he retain the position, gave rise to the recent rioting by students in Paris and to the students' strike which spread throughout France.

Glenwood Legion.

Glenwood, Ga., April 12.—(Special.)—Burns Geiger Post No. 67, of the American Legion, has oversubscribed its quota to the Legion Endowment campaign, which is now being held throughout the nation.

PIRATES SHY AT NIEHAUS' SERVICES

Pittsburg, April 12.—With the opening of the baseball season two days away, Manager McKechnie, of the Pittsburg Nationals, finds himself unable to select his lineup for the first game because of injuries to two regular players. Niehaus, first baseman, and Moore, second sacker, hurt during the training season, may not be ready for the fray. Grantham, for second base, and Ens, for first, are favored to replace the regulars.

The Pirates have an untried infield, but their followers believe the team will finish well up in the race if the youngsters make good.

Niehaus will make his start in fast company, while Wright, shortstop, and Moore are serving their second season. Traynor, at third, is relied upon to play his usual sterling game.

Yde, Meadows, Morrison, Kremer and Adams form a dependable pitching staff. Aldridge has not yet signed a contract.

Gooch and Smith will do the bulk of the catching.

McKechnie has a fleet-footed, hard-hitting outfield in Carey, Bigbee, Cuyler, Grantham and Barnhart.

THREE INDIAN REGULARS OUT OF OPENER

Cleveland, April 12.—(By the Associated Press.)—Well protected in all departments, with prospects of the best pitching staff in several years, the Cleveland Indians form the strongest team which has represented this city since 1021, when the locals were runners-up to the New York Yankees, in the opinion of President E. S. Barnard.

Indications are, however, that three regulars—First Baseman Burns, Third Baseman Lutzke and Outfielder Summa—will be out of the opening game Tuesday on account of sore arms or other disabilities.

Manager Speaker says he has the best array of left-handed pitchers that ever wore a Cleveland uniform. He is also well supplied with substitutes, predicting that Fred Spurgeon, New Orleans recruit, will prove one of the finds of the year.

Indications are that the pitching staff will be composed of Smith, Edwards, Shaute, Buckeye and Yowell. Miller or Clarke, left-handers, and Uhle, Speece, Karr, Levsen and Lehr or Luther Roy, right-handers. All are in good condition except Levsen, who has not rounded to form.

Spurgeon is capable of playing short, second or third, is fast on the bases and a splendid fielder and batter. Bob Knode, first baseman probably will alternate with George Burns when a right-handed pitcher opposes the Indians.

SENATORS TRIM GIANTS, 11 TO 5

Polo Grounds, New York, April 12. The New York fans who saw their Giants beaten for a world series last year by the Washington Senators turned out again on Easter Sunday for a little warm-up of their own for the opening of the season on Tuesday. They saw the Senators trim the Giants again, 11 to 5, which evened, six to six, a pre-season series in which it seemed earlier that the Giants would cop nearly every game.

It was a battle of hits and pitchers, there being 26 of the first and eight of the latter. The Senators, who can now start the season with the word to the capital fans that they are just as good as when they quit champions last fall, established an early margin by pounding Scott for five runs in the first inning.

Earl McNeely, one of the saviors of last year's series, opened the game with a homer into the left field stand and later slammed out a base-clearing two-bagger. Other exciting events of the disastrous first-inning outbreak included doubles by Adams, Rice and Bluege, and a single by Roger Peckinpaugh which scored two men. In the fourth inning a single by Bentley brought in Kelly and Jackson of the Giants. Then McNeely doubled down the third base line in the fifth, with bases full. He scored Judge and Bluege, while Ruel was thrown out at the plate. Jackson scored himself and Wilson on a homer in the eighth, and with Ryan finishing the game on the mound for the Giants, the Senators tacked on three more runs which they gleaned form a crop of five singles in the ninth.

Score by innings: R. H. E.
Washington ...510 020 003—11 17 0
New York.....100 100 020— 5 8 3

Batteries: Reuther, H. Kelly, Coveleskie and Ruel; Scott, Bentley, Barnes, Greenfield, Ryan and Gowdy.

Albany, Ga., April 12.—(Special.) Albany Methodists went overwhelmingly against unification here Sunday morning, instructing eight delegates elected to the conference in Pavo, to vote against the proposed plan.

From a congregation of about 400, only 4 votes in favor of the plan were cast.

Rev. J. N. Peacock, the pastor, has been opposed to the plan from the start, and has spoken against it a number of times.

Michalove and Niehoff Fail In Sunday Meeting To Pick Players To Be Sent Away

BY GEORGE CONGDON

Just one more day, folks, and the Southern scramble, along with a couple of nationally-important baseball quarrels, will be on.

The Atlanta squad of agate polishers this morning still consists of 20 ambitious young men, including Bert Niehoff, the skipper, whose ambitions point directly at a Southern league pennant for Atlanta.

"We'll have to decide tomorrow which ones we'll turn loose to cut our squad down to the limit of 18, for we haven't been able to do a thing toward reaching conclusions today," was the worried declaration last night of Dan Michalove, Cracker president, after an Easter wordfest with Niehoff, that had to do with anything but the conventional bunnies and little chickens for the day.

Pitcher Undecided.

Niehoff is still undecided as to who will pitch the opening game Tuesday in Chattanooga, although he has cut the number to two, Hughie Bedient, the Pacific coast right-hander, and Hollis McLaughlin, veteran Cracker, who also slings from the right side.

The line-up for opening, therefore, will be Zoeller, left field; Niehoff, second base; Good, right field; Cullop, center field; Smith, third base; Murphy, first base; Krehmyer, shortstop; Brock, catcher, and McLaughlin or Bedient, pitcher.

There is a possibility that Mike Gazella, the former LaFayette college football star, who is working as utility infielder for our side, will be substituted for Krehmyer, for the regular shortstop isn't through yet with the trouble a boil in his ear is causing.

Jenkins Out All Week.

Joe Jenkins won't be in condition for the opening game, for the sprain in his back, suffered when he and Rip Collins, of the Detroit Tigers collided near the home plate last week will have to be favored most of this week. Brock will catch, unless bugs settle in his spiked ankle. That's unlikely, however, for Trainer Bill Dailey is working overtime to heal the injury.

Big Thomas Rogers, last year with the Chicks, will shoot at the Crackers from Chattanooga's rifle pit in the opener Tuesday, white Anderson, last year a Lookout, will work back of the plate, taking Rogers' speed ball.

The line-up and batting order of the Lookouts will be as follows:

Crossley, third base; Knaupp, second base; Carroll, center field; Bigelow, right field; Burke, first base; Anderson, catcher; Bates, left field; Brandrimer, shortstop, and Rogers, pitcher.

All right, folks, just one more day and you'll hear about what happens after the first call of "play ball." Thursday we'll see the boys in action at home for the first time in a championship bout.

WOMEN PLAY TOURNEY TODAY

There will be a one-day medal golf tournament this morning over the Brookhaven course for the women golfers of the city. The tourney will be a handicap affair and trophies will be awarded the winners and runner-ups in both classes A and B.

Records will be kept for the low net scores turned in and point will be awarded to be applied in the season's handicaps.

Winter rules will be observed and the women's tees will be used on Nos. 4, 7, 8, 9, 11, 16, 17 and 18.

All women golfers in the city are invited to participate in the tournament this morning, regardless of club affiliations, and all are eligible to joint the association and play in this tournament and others that will follow.

The fairways and greens are in excellent condition and with clear weather promised for today some good scores are sure to be made.

COBB SIGHTS PENNANT FOR TIGERS

Detroit, April 12.—Ty Cobb believes that his Detroit Tigers will win the American league pennant this year, basing his belief as much on the team's reserve strength as upon the regulars themselves. Johnny Neun, Tavener and Hany, Cobb believes, not only will be available for infield duty when needed, but also can be depended upon as pinch-hitters.

The 1925 club is virtually the same that finished in third place last year. Heilmann, Cobb and Manush will be in the outfield, Blue, O'Rourke, Rigney and Jones in the infield, and Bassler and Woodall will catch.

An attack of influenza probably will keep Cobb out of the line-up in Tuesday's opener, and either Wingo or Fothergill will replace him. Earl Whitehill is generally expected to get the call for mound duty.

THOUSANDS INSPECT HOMES AT AVONDALE.

Avondale estates Sunday were the mecca for thousands of Atlantans who took advantage of the pretty weather to visit this big development and inspect the many features of interest there.

The four "Homes Beautiful," which were a part of the successful exhibit staged recently by The Constitution and cooperating merchants, were filled day and night by eager throngs. In addition, all the other residences in the development were open to inspection.

It was announced that the four "Homes Beautiful" will remain open to the public for an indefinite period. Two of them have been sold, but they will not be closed for inspection until all legal formalities in connection with passing of the deeds have been completed.

The development has been the center of busy scenes all during the past week, and G. F. Willis, owner and developer, reports that the sale has been brisk from the very first day. In fact, so many homes and lots already have been sold that plans are now being considered for the second unit.

Special interest was shown Sunday in the big nursery, the proposed Venetian swimming pool, golfing advantages offered, and many other advantages.

SHEPHERD BRYAN BUYS J. EPPS BROWN HOME

The handsome residence of the late J. Epps Brown, on Peachtree road and Wesley avenue, has been sold to Judge Shepard Bryan, it was learned Sunday.

Judge Bryan is at present living at his home on Peachtree and Thirteenth streets. He will move into his new residence in the near future.

The consideration in the sale has not been made public.

J. Epps Brown, who was chairman of the board of the Southern Bell Telephone company, died several weeks ago, after a long illness.

Mrs. S. R. Christie, Jr., entertained at a kitchen shower for Miss Carter Wednesday afternoon, at her home on Adams street, in Decatur.

Quantities of wild azalia and dogwood blossoms decorated the reception rooms artistically. The tea table held a silver basket of azalias. Pink candles held in silver candlesticks surrounded the central decoration.

Mrs. Charles Carter, Mrs. Frank Hughes, Mrs. Wiley West and Mrs. George Watts assisted Mrs. Christie in entertaining. Miss Virginia Watts and Miss Elizabeth Christie also assisted.

Miss Annette Carter wore a beautiful costume of blond satin with yoke and godets of lace. Her hat of lace, which was flower trimmed, matched her gown.

Woman's Banquet Benefits Organization.

Wednesday night in the banquet hall of the Kimball house, the women of the Ku Klux Klan gave a banquet for the benefit of their organization.

The hall was beautifully decorated with spring flowers. Music was furnished by the quartet from the John B. Jordon klan and a Hawaiian orchestra.

Several interesting talks pertaining to the work of the organization were given by members and the grand dragin of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan of Georgia.

Mrs. McCall To Be Honored At Affairs in Washington

Mrs. Howard H. McCall, vice president general from Georgia of the Daughters of the American Revolution, will leave Wednesday, April 15, for Washington, D. C., where she will attend the continental congress of the D. A. R. She has served this organization for the past three years as vice president general and will retire from office at this congress. She has also served as state regent, honorary state regent and a member of many national committees.

Mrs. McCall will attend the meeting of the National Officers' club on April 17, having been elected vice president representing the southern states, and also a charter member of the club, which is composed of national and ex-national officers of D. A. R.

National Board Meeting.

The national board of management of the D. A. R. will meet on Saturday, April 18, and the vice president general will be hostess at the luncheon given in honor of Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook. Among the many beautiful entertainments which will occur during the week of continental congress will be the afternoon tea which Mrs. McCall will give on Tuesday afternoon, April 21, at the Fairfax room, New Willard hotel, President General Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook to be the guest of honor.

The Georgia State society, of Washington, will also entertain at a reception in honor of the Georgia delegation attending the congress, Mrs. McCall and Mrs. Julius Talmadge to be the special guests of honor.

Honored at Other Affairs.

Mrs. McCall is an honorary member of the Wendell Wolfe chapter, D. A. R., of Washington, D. C., and will be one of the distinguished guests at the fifteenth anniversary dinner given Thursday evening at the chapter house.

O'Keefe Junior High Glee Club To Give Annual Performance

The O'Keefe Junior High Glee club will appear in 10 annual presentations in the assembly hall of O'Keefe Junior High school during the coming week. Owing to the demand for seats, there will be two performances. On Wednesday evening, April 15, at 8 o'clock, they will appear before the patrons and friends of the school and on Thursday afternoon, April 16, there will be a matinee especially for the students of the institution.

O'Keefe has good material from which to select voices making up this year's club. Miss Annie Mary Gilstrap, who is the leading soprano, has a lyrical voice which, despite her youth, has already attracted the interest of musical circles in the city to its promising qualities. She will sing Irving Berlin's popular song, "Listening." She will also sing in duet with Roy Bledsoe "In the Garden of Tomorrow."

Another attractive feature of the program will be a "Sunbonnet Song," which is an action song by old-fashioned school girls in pink and blue cretonne costumes and poke bonnets in harmonizing shades. Miss Josephine Waterman will be the outstanding dancer in this number and her supporting dancers will be Misses Margaret Wells, Virginia Heard, Josephine Dinkler, Marion Reynolds, Louise McDonald and Roberta Kilpatrick.

A colorful number will be the vivid staging of gypsy life and the varied gypsy songs in which the entire glee club will take part. The dramatic work of the club is good, and the skill of the young comedians shows to advantage in a skit, "April Fools," where Billy Scanling as Mr. Dunnbrown is the victim of an April fool joke when his plans to marry off three daughters are cleverly blocked by Edward Kane and Robert Vogel.

O'Keefe is enthusiastic in support of its glee club and always unite in making its appearance a gala social occasion.

Delegates Will Attend Congress.

Among the delegates who will attend the continental congress in Washington, D. C., from the Atlanta chapter are Mrs. Edwin Stewart, Miss Lilien Tidwell, Miss Virginia Hardin and Mrs. Eli A. Thomas. They will leave for Washington on Friday to be present at the opening of congress.

It's a Sensation

SLAMS AND SALAAMS

By Louise Dooly

THE presence in Asheville just now of Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, who is national woman's golf champion, and has so many trophies dangling to her string that it would take an adding machine correctly to compute them, made us think of the complete somersault in public opinion within a very few years concerning the athletic woman.

It is not so terribly long ago since the woman who went into men's club tournaments of whatever kind—golf, tennis, swimming—who wore flat-heeled shoes, was not only an exception, but was regarded as a sort of freak. Not only did the rocking chair brigade use their conversational claws on her, but the average man, if he did not take the trouble to criticize, showed his opinion by letting the atheltic female severely alone.

Now some men are actually willing to play golf with women!

And the athletic girl is in such good repute that those who are not athletes try to carry out the athletic appearance, anyway.

WOMEN always rode to the hounds, of course, in countries where hunting had a vogue, and we have often wondered what possible pleasure the English women could find in pheasant-hunting, for instance, when it usually rains, and even tweed skirts must get sopping wet.

Now women dress comfortably for the sports. Even knickers really have a certain appropriate place.

And how seldom do you see the really well-dressed woman on a shopping expedition downtown or at the market, wearing high-heeled shoes?

AWAY back as far as Bulwer-Lytton's story of "The Caxtons," the hero, who is a pioneer in the settling of Australia, becomes infatuated with a certain girl largely because she is about the only one of his class in the sparsely settled country, but is cured in time, by seeing her cross a muddy barnyard in the rain shod (for his benefit, he knows) in light-colored satin slippers.

A woman with such a lack of the sense of fitness, he decides, would make a mighty poor wife in Australia. And he lives to love another day—and another lady.

THERE are women who still try to balance themselves on French heels while they cross an unevenly-paved street. They could not look more awkward if the street were paved with live coals or egg shells, and they feel the same way. We know, because we try sometimes.

SPEAKING of comments about women's clothes, there were those of Dr. Eliza M. Mosher, of Brooklyn, who was given a dinner recently to mark the fiftieth anniversary of her continuous practice as a physician.

That she is no moss-back is indicated in her liberal attitude towards youth.

She considers that the socalled wildness of modern young women will pass, "For," she says, "the very girls who are wild today will do their best to restrain their own children from such a way of living."

She approves of the passing of the boiler-plate type of corset, etc., but believes that the vogue of too little clothes is worse than whalebone, for—listen to this:

"Lack of adequate clothing," she says, "does away with one's sense of privacy."

Smart old lady, we should remark.

EVEN the manner that used to go with the athletic type of woman, when only a few indulged, has long since passed into the discard.

There is our own southern Alexa Stirling, for instance; or more accurately speaking, Mrs. Fraser, of Canada, since her marriage recently.

This three-times national champion is so reserved as to seem timid.

Nor does the cultivation of athletic muscle decrease at all a woman's grace in that exercise which a long time ago was about the only one permitted her—dancing—unless we accept horseback riding, which she did in skirts on a side saddle. Women have never been more graceful on the dancing floor than they are now. And certainly in the south they have to be agile, too, to cope with the usual plenitude of breaks.

MODERN ETIQUETTE.

THE newest books of etiquette, under the head of engagements, will have to make room for an important addition.

When a woman engages herself to a married man who has hopes of getting rid of his current wife, the engagement is unofficial.

When a complacent state gives him a divorce, then the new engagement automatically becomes official, provided the unofficial fiancee in the meantime has not taken advantage of her liberty to change her mind.

The books of etiquette will be beholden for this illuminating definition to Mr. Charles H. Duell, who, as you know, came into the temporary limelight through his mixture of sentiment with business in his friendship, now rudely shattered, with Miss Lillian Gish.

SPEAKING of the movies, there was that western melodrama we saw recently which borrowed additional interest from the analytical remarks of the 8-year-old boy sitting with his mother behind us.

Things were getting pretty skittish for the heroine. It looked as if her only choice of an immediate future lay between unwilling elopement with the villain or capture by the Indians. Everybody was nervous.

Then the clear whisper of the little boy pierced the palpitating silence (to use an expression in keeping with the film captions).

"Don't you be worried, mother. The Indians won't get her. Jack Holt will get here in time. You needn't be afraid. You know these movies always turn out all right."

And later, as his prophecy comes true and the harried heroine sinks into the arms of Johnny-on-the-Spot, the small boy's whisper floats out again more comfortably, "Now for the love stuff."

THEN, too, there were the parents who broke their ironclad rule which permitted their children to attend only such pictures as they had first censored themselves. A birthday had to be celebrated, and the only film available was some sort of a Spanish story they had not seen, which featured the affectionate Rudolph. The parents decided to take a chance.

They were a bit horrified, however, when the picture proved to be quite purple with feeling. They listened with particular anxiety for the reaction of their 12-year-old son when Rudolph kissed the heroine through as many feet of film as the law and the limits on movie screen extravagance would permit.

"Gee, whiz! Why don't they break away? I could'a kissed her a dozen times while he's doing it once," was Son's comment.

And his parents breathed again.

Bessie Tift Alumnae To Meet Friday.

The Atlanta chapter of the Bessie Tift alumnae will meet Friday, April 17, with Mrs. R. N. Fickett, Jr., 1335 Ponce de Leon avenue. A splendid program of music and readings has been arranged and all members are urged to come and bring any one they may wish to ask. Husbands are especially invited.

The program will begin at 8:30 and refreshments will follow.

An admission of 50 cents will be charged and the proceeds used on the scholarship fund.

Miss Baker Will Be Honor Guest At Lovely Luncheon

Miss Edna Dean Baker, president of the Chicago Kindergarten and Elementary college, is to be entertained at a subscription luncheon in Atlanta, Saturday, April 18.

Mrs. E. J. Johnson, chairman of the social committee of the Atlanta Kindergarten Alumnae club, is arranging for the outstanding educators and leaders of little children to meet Miss Baker at this luncheon which is to be held in the banquet room of the Women's club at 1:30. This luncheon is to be given to Miss Baker on her return from Macon, where she is being featured as one of the prominent speakers before the state educational conferences. Miss Baker is most widely-known through her books which have been written for leaders of pre-school age groups and teachers of primary and kindergarten departments.

Miss Plummer Weds Sam Davis.

The bride was attired in tan silk with cream lace trimmings and accessories to match. Her flowers were carnations, lilies of the valley and maidenhair ferns tied with white ribbons.

Mrs. Durham, who gave the bride in marriage, was gowned in black silk crepe and she wore a corsage bouquet of violets.

Mrs. Rodgers Celebrates 92nd Birthday.

Fifth Avenue, Broadway Thronged With Women in New Easter Frocks

BY HEDDA HOYT.

New York, April 12.—New York's two main thoroughfares, Fifth avenue and Broadway, were thronged Sunday with women in pastel-hued Easter finery. Pinks, rose-beige, light greens, tans and blues were the colors of the day.

Whatever Easter may mean to the child—to the woman it means clothes! Clothes to the right of them, clothes to the left of them, down the main street of every city marched the Four Hundred. And on the back streets marched the lesser lights—the Judy O'Gradies who wait for the after-Easter sales.

Broadway was crowded with chorus girls whose Saturday night's pay was squandered on Sunday's bonnets. Fifth avenue shone with women of fashion, whose raiment has meant weeks of work for the fashionable modistes.

Fashions on Fifth Avenue.

On Fifth avenue, there were flappers in tan, rose or navy coats matched by felt hats and others in jacquette suits of mixtured material, wearing gayly colored scarfs and hats. Several smart matrons were garbed in black silk coats, which they drew tightly about their bodies. Their hats were black, their coats had fur hem borders and orchids were pinned on their untrimmed lapels.

A youthful debutante wore a similar coat in light gray silk, trimmed in gray fox at the front hem line. Her hat was gray silk, trimmed with violets on one side. Her skirt was typical example of "what is being neither short nor long. She was a worn" by the younger set of the elite. Her color scheme harmonized from bonnet to shoes. There was no fur about her neck. No artificial corsage. No make-up save the rouge upon her lips.

More Extreme Fashions.

Later in the day, women of another type strolled down the avenue displaying their Easter finery. They walked with men garbed in "bird" tones—pastel shades. Many of these gayly dressed couples were a short-skirted lot. One was astounded at the sheer and ample expanse of hosiery. One woman wore a sable cape which extended just a trifle below her knees. Beneath this cape appeared two brown legs—and nothing more. Others wore skimpy coats of scarlet trimmed in leopard fur. Light green cloth cloats trimmed in gray fox are popular with the set of the upper Forties. Their footgear runs to gray and beige shades.

As a new note in the 1925 style review were several hand-knitted sweaters, one a copy of the double-breasted coat worn by the Prince of Wales.

Wore Black Satin Pajamas.

The most startling outfit was what appeared to be a suit of black satin with a black satin coat to match. The daring parader received considerable attention from other pedestrians, but the trousered costume was considered as a freak outfit rather than a barometer of what might be expected in future fashion.

Individual among the youthful types is a little cape-suit of black broadcloth with a narrow scarf-collar lined in red and black figured silk. Hat and envelope purse are of red leather.

Among the fur wraps are short caracul jacquettes in beige tones matched by frocks of self shade.

Elsie Janis in Parade.

Among the stars from Broadway who glistened in the Easter parade was Elsie Janis, who appeared as girlish and demure as ever as she strolled with her mother. She wore a rose-biege coat of suede cloth, trimmed about the hem with a wide band of chinchilla. Her little hat of black straw and velvet sat on her head like a black beauty spot amid the soft, pinkish tones of her costume. Her frock was of blond crepe meteor, very simple in line and untrimmed. Her slender ankles were encased in blond hosiery and her satin slippers were of deeper blond shade.

Lenore Ulric chose as her Easter costume a flame-colored chiffon coat, trimmed on collar and hemline with yellow fur. Several layers of flame chiffon made the wrap appropriate for spring wear. Her frock of biege chiffon was matched by hat, shoes and gloves.

Cross Word Puzzle Gown.

Miss Helen Broderick, a comedienne, known as the funniest girl on Broadway, startled the passers-by by appearing in a cross-word puzzle gown, which was black with winged side-panels of huge, black and white checked silk with puzzle design. Rolled collar and cuffs were also of cross-word design, as were the two huge wings which sat at perky angles on her black hat.

Mrs. Harry C. Cushing, III., was one of the smartest representatives of the Four Hundred. Her crepe frock of almond green was matched by a coat of deeper shade, bordered at the hemline with almond green, the two green tones being blended by a band of taupe fox fur. Her small green felt hat brought out the red-dish tones in her hair.

Women Voters Will Hold Convention.

The convention of the National League of Women Voters takes place this week in Richmond, Va. It is the first time the league has met further south than Baltimore and it is an opportunity for all southern members to attend. The delegates from Georgia are: From Savannah, Mrs. F. W. Altstaetter; from College Park, Mrs. L. C. Algee; from Athens, Mrs. L. L. Hendren. Miss Josephine Wilines, Miss Edith House, a senior in law at the University of Georgia. Miss House will represent the college women of the south on the program. Miss Sally Fanny Gleaton from Conyers is another delegate and Mrs. R. L. Turman, Mrs. J. P. Billups and Miss Eleonore Raoul will go from Atlanta.

The league at this time of the year always emphasizes the importance of registering. Everyone should go to the courthouse and return taxes at the tax collector's office and then go to the city hall and sign the voter's oath at the city clerk's office. It may be that an election on the question of whether the people of Atlanta are to have an opportunity to vote on a new chart in Atlanta in 1926 will come before the people for a vote next month. The league has sponsored the cause of a council manager for years, and with its present membership there is no doubt that the election would carry on the issue of whether to submit a charter to the people, if every member of the league remembers that this is the time of the year to register and that this important duty must not be neglected.

Child-birth

When the Little One arrives, you can have that moment more free from suffering than you have perhaps imagined. An eminent physician, expert in this science, has shown the way. It was he who first produced the great remedy "Mother's Friend." Mrs. C. J. Hartman, Scranton, Pa., says:

"With my first two children I had a doctor and a nurse and then they had to use instruments, but with my last two children I used 'Mother's Friend' and had only a nurse; we had no time to get a doctor because I wasn't very sick—only about ten or fifteen minutes." Use "Mother's Friend" as our mothers and grandmothers did. Don't wait, start today, and meanwhile write to Bradfield Regulator Co., BA 46, Atlanta, Ga., for a free illustrated book containing information every expectant mother should have. "Mother's Friend" is sold by all drug stores—everywhere.

Health Club Is Organized By Prominent Atlanta Women

The Health club inaugurated as the result of the Margaret Josephine Blair lectures and exercises given under the auspices of The Atlanta Constitution was organized at the last meeting of the class at the Atlanta Biltmore Thursday, April 9.

Mrs. Blair is one of the most remarkable women, looking and feeling like a young girl, although 63 years old. Her class declared at the last meeting that they had been helped physically, spiritually and mentally in the 10 days' exercises. There were 60 in the class.

The doctors had told Mrs. Blair that she could not get well when she began the exercises and the outdoor life by which she cured herself. She believes in a beautiful spirit and outlook on life as much as a beautiful body and teaches that the beautiful body is the result of right thinking and right living.

The Love Cycle

BY MILDRED BARBOUR

CHANGES.

Young Mansfield's wooing of Helen Weston was rather slow and spasmodic.

The boy had no real thought of marriage. With a mother and two young sisters practically dependent upon his earnings, he had no griht to thing of it. Unaccustomed as he was to feminine companionship outside of his family, he failed to note Helen's signs of coquetry. For a long time, he saw her only as a new, pleasant and rather thrilling friend. He liked to take her to parties and to the theater when he could afford it, because she was very sweet and agreeable and deferred to him with a flattering eagerness. Moreover, she was always beautifully dressed and as Weston Motors had progressed, she required more and more little airs and graces which come with the consciousness of wealth. The Weston carriage, which bid fair to eclipse the Marlowe equippage, was always at the disposal of the young people in the evenings.

But some instinct in him rebelled against this frequent use of the Weston resources in entertaining Helen. He resented it when Mrs. Weston presented him with theater tickets, as she often did, and asked him to escort Helen. He felt in himself a sense of subserviency when he came every Sunday evening for supper at the Weston's, solely because they expected it and he had not the courage to refuse even though he would often have preferred to have a swim at the gym or spend the evening with the books that he loved.

But the Westons had definitely made up their minds about their daughter's future, or rather Weston himself had, and Mrs. Weston had long ago learned to bow to his will. Moreover, she really liked Hal and being a sensible woman, saw in him not only a brilliant future for himself but a strong protector for her weak, pretty child. So she did what she could to encourage the match.

Mrs. Mansfield was very pleased, too, at the turn of events. Being a wise woman, she knew that Hal must marry some day and she believed that all things taken into consideration, he could not make a better match than to marry the daughter of his father's old friend. Like all mothers, she was fearful of the pretty, alluring little nobodies whom boys marry in their teens and it seemed to her, with Hal drifting in the direction of Helen, her apprehensions of a mesalliance were rapidly being dissipated. So from her side, she encouraged the friendship and urged him to the Sunday evening soppers, often declaring laughingly, when he seemed a bit reluctant: "You'd better go, dear, the girls and I are only having crackers and milk tonight. You'll have a wonderful supper most likely."

So Hal and Helen drifted down the path that leads to a shining altar, candle-lit and decked with orange blossoms.

Meanwhile, Jane Marlowe was growing up. She was shedding the ugly duckling shell at a speed which brought her mother gratification. Mrs. Marlowe had never been quite the same since the night of Helen Weston's eighteenth birthday party, when young Mansfield had turned from her to Helen. At that moment, Mrs. Marlowe realized that her own cherished youth had fled and that men, (even very young men) could forget her before the lure of prettier and fresher faces.

It is a woman's bitterest hour and Mrs. Marlowe, with her exaggerated vanity, suffered more keenly than most, but, it made her a little more frivolous outwardly. If it drove her to greater lengths in elaborate costuming, it also awakened in her a desire that her daughter should possess a woman's undeniable heritage, the right to admiration.

She paid more attention to Jane after that, honestly endeavoring to study the child and emphasize her natural gifts rather than to force upon her the superficial prettiness which she, herself, admired.

She found a stranger in her own child, a brain that was quick and keen; fond of knowledge gleaned from books that staggered her; a force of will and sense of judgment that disquieted her; and a background of physical beauty that both disturbed and delighted her.

Mrs. Marlowe was not a clever woman, but it would have taken one more dense than she not to realize in her daughter the latent qualities of a personality magnetic, irresistable and subtly charming.

That Jane was rapidly changing from the chrysalis to the butterfly was noticeable to everyone. Even young Mansfield, absorbed as he was in his new secretarial job and his love affair, became aware of it when he met her down town one winter night.

He saw her rarely—once or twice a month, perhaps—at some gathering where the Westons and the Marlowes and the Manstields appeared, but he never noticed her, because he considered her only a child, and he was close to 22.

He was hurrying from the office to the gym one night in December when the first snow of the year was falling in soft feathery flakes. With his head down protectingly against the thick white curtain, he rounded a corner and collided violently with someone.

COLOR CUT-OUTS

Old Mother Goose

RIDING THE SKIES.

Here's a poem which the little English children used to say ages ago about "Old Mother Goose" and her gander, and the adventures of her son. Children who save these paper dolls every day can act out this rhyme when the set is completed.

Old Mother Goose, when
She wanted to wander,
Would ride through the air
On a very fine gander.

Mother Goose had a house,
'Twas built in a wood,
Where an owl at the door
For a sentinel stood.

Color Mother Goose's dress and tall hat black. Her apron and collar are white. The gander should be grey with a yellow bill. Watch for Mother Goose's son tomorrow.

Art Exhibition At Woman's Club.

An exhibition of the works of Eliot Clark, landscape painter, will be open to the public at the Atlanta Woman's club "Gallerie Intime" next Tuesday, April 14, and will continue for two weeks. Mr. Clark, recognized as one of our leading landscapists, and a winner of several prizes, has for the past three months been conducting art classes in Savannah.

Born in New York city, the son of a noted artist, he began his career as a painter while yet a child. At the age of nine he exhibited in the New York Water Color club, and when 13 showed his first picture at the National academy. He later traveled abroad. While in Paris he was represetned in an exhibition of contemporary French and American artists, and is an annual contributor to the leading exhibitions in this country, including the National academy, the Art institute, Chicago; Pennsylvania academy, Philadelphia, and the Corcoran gallery, Washington. He is an associate member of the National academy, member of the American Water Color society, of which he was president from 1919 to 1923, and of numerous other nationally-known organizations.

Mr. Clark is also widely known as a lecturer and a writer on art. He is the author of authoritative books on John Twachtman and Alexander Wyant, and of many articles appearing in Scribner's Magazine, The International Studio, Arts and Decoration, The Art World and others.

Eliot Clark is a poet by nature. He has chosen paints and canvas as a medium for expressing his vision. "You can almost smell the apple blossoms and the perfume of the lilacs, and when you look far away from it you would think you could walk into the picture, it is so real." These words of a little nine-year-old child, written about one of Mr. Clark's pictures, leave nothing for the "art critic" to say.

There will be a formal opening of the exhibition Tuesday afternoon, from 4 to 6, to which invitations have been issued by the art department of the club.

Foreword from Mr. Burbank

This series of articles has been prepared by Mrs. Urquhart by my aid and permission for the benefit of all who may not know how to proceed in the delightful health giving pastime of home gardening, and to relieve me of thousands of letters to which I have no time for reply.

Luther Burbank

In the Garden With Burbank

As Reported by Elizabeth Urquhart
And Edited by Luther Burbank

LAWNS AND WATERING.

A lawn is to a garden what a setting is to a scene, or to be more poetical, an accompaniment to a song, enhancing it and bringing out its melody. Therefore the amateur gardener should leave space for his lawn in his earliest plans and get it well under way by the time the floral procession starts.

Luther Burbank

Just here it might be well to offer a suggestion about making a plan for the garden, which is essential as when building a house. Every one loves to draw house plans, and an equal amount of pleasure may be had out of garden plans.

Take one-half-inch ruled paper, each square standing for 10 feet, and then draw your plan to scale. If the house be already there, allow for that space, then plan or change the roads or paths.

These last should not be less than four or five feet wide, and not too many of them, cutting up the lawns and flower beds; stepping stones may replace paths with good effect.

After the plan of the garden is made and the walks laid out, space should be allowed for the lawn. The ground must be graded and leveled, then spaded, fertilized, raked and lightly mulched with old manure or straw to keep the watering from packing the ground.

While sweet white clover makes a satisfactory lawn, it requires more water than grass, and on consulting Mr. Burbank, we find that he considers pure Kentucky blue grass better than any lawn mixture, and that he again urges care in buying seeds from reputable seedsmen.

He has experimented with a number of substitutes for grass, which he has sought to adapt for lands of little rain. Among these is the Chilean lippia, which while responding to hybridization, and producing several good varieties, is too tender for northern climates; also the mesembryanthemum, seacoast plant so effectively used in the grounds of the Panama Pacific exposition; the vinca major, a slender, running vine with evergreen folinge, and the trailing hypericum, also a native of the mountains of Chili. Mr. Burbank said in this connection:

"Several species of trailing hypericum have been received from Russia, Siberia and Central and Northern Europe, and after experiment these have shown a variation in rapid growth, compactness and promise of developing into a lawn plant suitable for all climates.

"But until these new plants have been perfected the established lawn grass, such as Kentucky blue grass, must still be relied on or in some cases the coarser growing perennial rye grass."

Watering a lawn is apparently a simple process, but there is a science in it for all that. Irrigation itself moves to a place in the front ranks in the west where summer rains are absent and the water supply too often a serious question.

But even on the Atlantic coast, where rain is both frequent and free, there are seasons where artificial watering is necessary, and lawns in particular must be looked after; moreover the grass roots so invade the entire surface that the supply of water, however generous, is soon used up.

Here is clearly a case for the best methods of irrigation, and as Mr. Burbank says:

"Gardens and lawns are not properly watered by small sprinklers, as they do not water evenly. The water is distributed in such a way that some parts of the ground have too much water and some too little.

"There is a system of overhead irrigation known as the Skinner system, which I have found to be the best form of sprinkling. It consists of a number of 3-4-inch galvanized iron pipes with nipples placed along the sides from 12 to 30 inches apart. The pipes are connected with the water supply by a garden hose, and a space from 25 to 50 feet is covered.

"When it is desired to install them permanently, the pipes may be camouflaged by shrubbery and vines. A rubber hose is less expensive to buy than galvanized iron pipe, but the greater cost is more than made up by the greater durability of the pipe."

A certain impatience to reach the subject of plants and flowers was allayed by the very interesting comments made by Mr. Burbank on the topic of weeds and weeding.

"It will not be found enough to keep your own garden weeded, it is necessary to attack the weeds outside your own boundary lines. Weeds, like gophers and moles, invade neighboring territory and have besides the gift of projecting themselves in all directions; they keep their vitality for a long time, sometimes for years, and protect themselves as do their betters with spines and thorns.

"They have besides the remarkable faculty of imitating the seeds of grains and other plants which puts them in the class of nature's favorites. Hence, remembering all these precautions against extermination which she has taken, it will be realized that only prompt and constant warfare can save the garden from their menace. Not only do they crowd out more desirable plants, but they rob the soil of moisture and consume the food."

Tomorrow: Mr. Burbank will tell you how to have harmony in colors.

Head Swim?

Clear the digestive tract, if you would relieve dizziness,

IN the dark ages of medical knowledge, people didn't understand that most unpleasant of afflictions—uncontrolled dizziness. They blamed the heart, the lungs, the brain—everything but the right thing; suffered untold torture as a result.

Today, sensible people know that dizziness is simply a symptom. It usually means that congested waste matter in the digestive tract is saturating the entire system with its poisons.

Whenever your "head swims", you may be sure that a dose of Pluto Water is in order. This safe, quick-action, water physic goes direct to the root of the trouble. In 30 minutes to two hours, the poison is expelled and a normal feeling of equilibrium returns. Don't resort to slow-action, over-night cathartics. Get relief promptly and thoroughly with Pluto Water.

Investment Advice

The president of the New York Stock Exchange estimates that swindling by the sale of fraudulent securities costs the American people a billion dollars every year, or one-third of the total cost of crime. And fraudulent bankruptcies cost the public about $400,000,000 a year.

Every man and woman, too, sooner or later in his lifetime, has SOME money to invest, whether it is merely a life insurance policy, a savings account, a building and loan association account, or government or industrial securities—stocks or bonds. Unlike Any Story You Have Ever Read

The Lost World

BY SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE

SYNOPSIS

Malone, a London newspaper reporter, rejected by the girl he loves because he has no heroic deeds to his credit, appeals to his editor for a dangerous assignment, and is sent to interview Professor Challenger, who has recently returned from South America with a story, which no one believes, of the existence there of prehistoric animals. By way of proof he shows Malone a sketch of a stegosaurus, which he had found among the possessions of a dead explorer, Maple White; some photographs, and a piece of the wing of a pterodactyl. At a scientific lecture that night Challenger calls for volunteers for an expedition to test the truth of his assertions. . . . Thus one foggy morning young Malone finds himself a member of a party of three setting out for South America. The other two are Professor Summerlee, a scientist, and Lord John Roxton, well-known explorer. Challenger has given him sealed instructions, and at the time and place specified the envelope is opened. It contains a blank sheet of paper!

The shadow of a squat figure had stolen across the patch of sunlight. That voice! That monstrous breadth of shoulder! We sprang to our feet with a gasp of astonishment as Challenger, in a round, boyish straw hat with a colored ribbon—Challenger, with his hands in his jacket pockets and his canvas shoes daintily pointing as he walked—appeared in the open space before us. He threw back his head, and there he stood in the golden sun with all his old Assyrian luxuriance of beard, all his native insolence of drooping eyelids and intolerant eyes.

"I fear," he said, taking out his watch, "that I am a few minutes too late. When I gave you this envelope I must confess that I had never intended that you should open it, for it had been my fixed intention to be with you before the hour. The unfortunate delay can be apportioned between a blundering pilot and an instrusive sandbank. I fear that it has given my colleague, Professor Summerlee, occasion to blaspheme."

"I am bound to say, sir," said Lord John, with some sternness of voice, "that your turning up is a considerable relief to us, for our mission seemed to have come to a premature end. Even now, I can't for the life of me understand why you should have worked it in so extraordinary a manner."

Instead of answering, Professor Challenger entered, shook hands with myself and Lord John, bowed with ponderous insolence to Professor Summerlee, and sank back into a basket-chair, which creaked and swayed beneath his weight.

"Is all ready for your journey?" he asked.

"We can start tomorrow."

"Then so you shall. You need no chart of directions now, since you will have the inestimable advantage of my own guidance. From the first I had determined that I would myself preside over your investigation. The most elaborate charts would, as you will steadily admit, be a poor substitute for my own intelligence and advice. As to the small ruse which I played upon you in the matter of the envelope, it is clear that had I told you all my intentions, I should have been forced to resist unwelcome pressure to travel out with you."

"Not from me, sir!" exclaimed Professor Summerlee, heartily. "So long as there was another ship upon the Atlantic!"

Challenger waved him away with his great hairy hand.

"Your common sense will, I am sure sustain my objection and realize that it was better that I should direct my own movements and appear only at the exact moment when my presence was needed. That moment has now arrived. You are in safe hands. You will now fail to reach your destination from henceforth I take command of this expendition, and I must ask you to complete your preparations tonight, so that we may be able to make an early start in the morning. My time is of value, and the same thing may be said, no doubt, in a lesser degree of your own. I propose, therefore, that we push on as rapidly as possible, until you have come to see."

Lord John Roxton has chartered a large steam launch, the Esmeralda, which was to carry us up the river. So far as the climate goes, it was immaterial what time we chose for our expedition, as the temperature ranges from 75 to 90 degrees both summer and winter, with no appreciable difference in heat. In moisture, however, it is otherwise; from December to May is the period of the rains, and during this time the river slowly rises until it attains a height of nearly 40 feet above its low-water mark. It floods the banks, extends in great lagoons over a monstrous waste of country, and forms a huge district, called locally the Gapo, which is for the most part too marshy for foot travel and too shallow for boating. About June the waters begin to fall, and are at their lowest at October or November. Thus our expedition was at the time of the dry season, when the great river and its tributaries were more or less in a normal condition.

The current of the river is a slight one, the drop being not greater than 8 inches in a mile. No stream could be more convenient for navigation, since the prevailing wind is southeast, and sailing boats may make a continuous progress to the Peruvian frontier, dropping down again with the current. In our own case the excellent engines of the Esmeralda could disregard the sluggish flow of the stream, and we made as rapid progress as if we were navigating a stagnant lake. For three days we steamed northwestwards up a stream which even here, a thousand miles from its mouth, was still so enormous that from its center the two banks were mere shadows upon the distant skyline. On the fourth day after leaving Manaos we turned into a tributary which at its mouth was little smaller than the main stream. It narrowed rapidly, however, and after two more days' steaming we reached an Indian village, where the professor insisted that we should land, and that the Esmeralda should be sent back to Manaos. We should soon come upon rapids, he explained, which would make its further use impossible. He added, privately that we were now approaching the door of the unknown country, and that the fewer we took into our confidence the better it would be. To this end also he made each of us give our word of honor that we should public or say nothing which would give any exact clue as to the whereabouts of our travels, while the servants were all solemnly sworn to the same effect. It is for this reason that I am compelled to be vague in my narrative, and I would warn my readers that in any map or diagram which I may give the relation of places to each other may be correct, but the points of the compass are carefully confused, so that in no way can it be taken as an actual guide to the country. Professor Challenger's reasons for secrecy may be valid or not, but we had no choice but to adopt them, for he was prepared to abandon the whole expedition rather than modify the conditions upon which he would guide us.

It was August 2 when we snapped our last link with the outer world by bidding farewell to the Esmeralda. Since then four days have passed, during which we have engaged two large canoes from the Indians, made of so light a material (skins over a bamboo framework) that we should be able to carry them around any obstacle. These we have loaded with all our effects, and have engaged two additional Indians to help us in the navigation. I understand that they are the very two—Ataca and Ipetu by name—who accompanied Professor Challenger upon his previous journey. They appeared to be terrified at the prospect of repeating it over, but the chief has patriarchal powers in these countries, and if the bargain is good in his eyes the clansman has little choice in the matter.

So tomorrow we disappear into the unknown. This account I am transmitting down the river by canoe, and it may be our last word to those who are interested in our fate. I have, according to our arrangement, addressed it to you, my dear Mr. McArdle, and I leave it to your discretion to delete, alter, or do what you like with it. From the assurance of Professor Challenger's manner—and in spite of the continued skepticism of Professor Summerlee—I have no doubt that our leader will make good his statement, and that we are really on the eve of some most remarkable experiences.

THE GUMPS—THE HUNGER CRY

BITS OF N. Y. LIFE

BY O. O. M'INTYRE

New York, N. Y.—A page from the dairy of a modern Samuel Pepys: Up and with Gene Markey, the book reviewer, to greet Ashton Stevens, the drama critic, against his going to Europe and had a bite with Ina Claire who was in high looks and bravely gay.

And we talked very big about literature albeit I know very little about it and so to Gramercy Park to see H. Roth's new son. Thence to R. Long's luncheon to Michael Arlen the tayle writer, and found him a very small, shy young man, but he won our hearts by his frankness.

In the evening to the Madison to a dinner Henry Sell gave to young Arlen also there and, too, Mrs. W. R. Hearst, Norman Hapgood, Joseph Moore, Irvin Cobb, Ralph Barton and all of our wives and mighty mirth we had. So home late and to bed.

Ever since the promulgation of that phantasy that Eugene Walter gnawed at crusts on a Bryant Park bench before New York claimed him as a writing genius, there has been talk of a cozy home for scribblers.

I have never met a writer who actually suffered the pangs of hunger. O. Henry perhaps came nearest to it in New York in the last decade.

In less affluent writing days, if any, I used to journey to second-hand clothes shops on Second avenue in the spring to dispose of my winter suit. It became a sort of high adventure.

The suit was usually of brown. With uncanny instinct and before I opened the package the overlord would say: "If it is brown, I don't want it"—and my heart would sink.

"If it was now a niftick blue suit I could use it," and then he would open and inspect the brown suit, with well feigned disgust. "How much?" he would inquire in a voice that indicated that any price was too much.

I had a fixed price—$6. He would tie up the package and without a word hand it back and I would start for the door. At the entrance he would call: "Wait a minute!" and the haggling would begin.

He would offer $5.50 and moan because the suit was not of blue. But I always held out and in the end got my price. Once I did capitulate for $5.90 and have been kicking myself ever since.

The last stand of the combination shooting gallery and penny peep-show is on Sixth avenue. An impressario in cowboy hat, blue flannel shirt and rattlesnake belt presides. There are also many mechanical fortune telling devices, weight-lifting machines and the like. The proprietor tells me most of his patrons are city folk and the heaviest rush of trade is after the the theater.

The library wall on Forty Second street is the pitch ground of the night peddlers. For five cents one may scan the heavens through a telescope. Also see the Lord's prayer engraved on a pin head. Brown-derbied men sell naughty French pictures. Silk neckties for a dime—with the whispered implication they were stolen. A strange crew of salesmen. They mingle together but rarely converse. A few sales a night seem to meet their needs.

I have a note from reconcilement department of a New York bank. I fear to open it. I suppose they cannot reconcile incoming checks of mine with the amount deposited.

"Lightning."

(At the Lyric.)

Monday night's performance at the Lyric theater marks the opening of the Lyric Players' production of "Lightnin'," expected to be one of the most unusual successes of the local theatrical season, just as was the original production in the case of the New York theatrical year.

The play is a combination of intense drama, hilarious comedy and sympathetic characterization and these qualities explain its astonishing success on the English-speaking stage.

Walter Hiers.

(At Loew's Grand.)

Walter Hiers, Georgia's own product and the funniest fat man in the films, is just one of the stars in "Excuse Me," the photoplay on the remarkable Loew's Grand program this week. Conrad Nagel is the lead. The picture was adapted from Rupert Hughes' famous stage triumph. It is a romance in a pullman coach, funny without end and exciting beyond description.

In addition to that, and Judge's crossword puzzle and news reels and other current Loew features, National Vaudeville association week brings to the Grand the greatest five-act vaudeville program of recent weeks, headlined by the remarkable Franlyn D'Amore, strong man, musician, dancer and comedian with his clever company. "The Co-Eds," a clever musical farce, a pair of dare-devil girl aerialists, the most amusing of all negro comedians and a couple of singing, and dancing comedians are other attractions.

Big Klan Circus Will Open Week's Engagement Today

The Keyo Japs, famous performers who will appear in the big three-ring Klan circus at Spiller park all this week.

Enchanting rumbles of heavy wagons, the click-clack of stake drivers, the raucous cries of wild animals, the flapping of canvases and the shouts of an army of workmen signalized the arrival in Atlanta Sunday of the big three-ring klan circus to be staged all this week at Spiller park. The two show trains rolled in early and in a remarkably short time the tented city began to mount skyward.

Streams of people poured into the show grounds Sunday and watched the circus men rear their magic city. The cookhouse went up first and soon was furnishing workmen with coffee and early breakfast before the day broke in the east and from that time on the circus ground presented the usual busy scene.

This year is the first time the John B. Gordon klan, No. 91, Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, has sponsored a complete three-ring circus and all klansmen in the city are cooperating in making this engagement a success. The Gordon klan will turn over its entire receipts to the Atlanta Chapter United Daughters of the Confederacy to be used in improving conditions at the Confederate Soldiers' home here.

Big Show Offered.

Visitors to the show grounds Sunday were unanimous in expressing amazement at the magnitude of the klan circus. The show is a complete three-ring affair and carries in addition a congress of dare devils which brings many of the most thrilling attractions in the country here for this engagement. All the big wagons bear the words "klan circus" painted on their sides in bright colors.

The klan show presented a spick and span appearance as it arose Sunday and with new tents and banners and freshly painted wagons it bore an atmosphere of freshness not found in the usual circuses.

The congress of dare devils will be presented in the open air on the plaza in front of the big show tent. The Marvelous Mills strung his high rope early Sunday and it is about the highest rope that has ever been stretched in Atlanta for an exhibition of this kind. Mills presents his "frolics in the air" as one of the feature attractions.

Queen of High Divers.

Pretty Mme. Constance, queen of high divers, was on hand superintending erection of the high ladder from which she dives into a small tank of water a distance of 96 feet. The paraphernalia of the Great Fusser was early on the ground. The sensational Meredith also completed the erection of the rigging for his cloud swing. The great Valencio, who loops the loop in a leap of 62 feet without the use of a net will present his act as the climax to the big show program.

In addition to the great Valencio will appear the famous Hocum family of riders, the Riding Crandalls, the Loftis and Carlke families of wire walkers; the Keyo Japs, the Toki troupe, the eight Mezzans and the Ben Hassan troupes of whirlwind Arabian acrobats; Honan's dog and pony circus, "Silvers" Johnson and his famous clown band, the Silverlake trio and "Big Mouth Billy" Silverlake, acrobatic clown, the Flying Cantons, Madame Hocum's statuary horses, the six human butterflies and dozens of other arenic champions.

Tonight at 6 o'clock members of John B. Gordon klan will stage a spectacular parade through the downtown streets of the city headed by Merle Baker's Banner band and two other bands. The parade will form on the Washington street viaduct at 5:45 o'clock this afternoon and will move down Mitchell street to Whitehall street, along Whitehall and Peachtree streets to Ivy street and thence back to the auditorium where the parade will disband and the members will go to the show grounds.

New Vaudeville.

(At Keith's Forsyth.)

All the elements of baffling mystery and elaborateness of the Hindu, with some of the most gorgeous scenery and costumes in vaudeville, are included in the act of the Great Leon, greatest of magical entertainers who is headlining the program at Keith's Forsyth theater the first part of this week.

In addition there is the act of Loraine Howard and Flo Lind, blackface comediennes, entitled "Just Messin' 'Round." Sylvia Snow and Dan Sigworth are highly entertaining in "Let's Pretend," and Charles Forgo and Leah Richards offer "The Local Girl." Joseph Rankin concludes the bill in his wonderful xylophone concert.

"Taka Chance Week."

(Opens At Howard.)

"Taka Chance Week" opens at the Howard today. As the title suggests patrons have not been told what the feature and the different units are, but upon previewing the feature picture in the projection room, the critics were agreed that the picture is one of the season's best attractions to date in the world of cinema art. The management of the theater, too, agrees that the program is one of the most meritorious yet offered, made up of the feature already mentioned, a hilariously funny comedy, a personal stage appearance of a local screen star whose name has also been withheld.

"Broken Laws."

(At Alamo No. 2.)

"Broken Laws," described by many critics as the greatest drama since "Madam X," is the current attraction at Alama No. 2 this week from Monday through Friday. Mrs. Wallace Reid, who stars in the production, is said to have the greatest role of her long career upon the silver sheet. Percy Marmont is the leading man. The Six Royal Holland Bell Ringers, a clever group of talented musicians, present a novel musical diversion as the added attraction.

"Men and Women."

(At the Rialto.)

An elaborate program of Easter week entertainment is to open at the Rialto theater today. The feature picture is "Men and Women," with Richard Dix in the star role. Another headliner will be a special Easter offering by a group of beautiful dancers, pupils of Miss Nellie Sullivan, Atlanta's premiere danseuse.

There will be, furthermore, two comedies, "Savage Love," a Christie Educational, and the first of a new series, a Funny Face comedy, "Up and Down." "Men and Women" is the story of a young bank cashier whose wife has ideas far beyond his modest salary. He makes use of some bank securities to take a "flyer" in Wall street. The bottom falls out of his stock and he is held as a thief.

'MAGIC' MATTRESS REFUSES TO FLY: 'RIDER' UNINJURED

San Francisco, April 12.—The police are authority for the report that Melvin Lewis tried to use a bed mattress as a magic flying carpet here, but with only indifferent success. Lewis, the police say, jumped from the sixth story of a hotel with his mattress and landed on it on the pavement below, escaping uninjured.

Fitzgerald Chautauqua.

Fitzgerald, Ga., April 12.—(Special.)—The Redpath Chautauqua has closed a successful week of entertainment here, the proceeds for tickets exceeding the guarantee fund and leaving a small balance, which will be added to the public improvement fund of the Woman's club, which at this time is making strenuous effort to beautify the city by setting out flowers and trees along the highways and streets of the city.

That's the sort of service Constitution ads are giving to their thousands of users in Atlanta.

Miss M. Failia, 91 Vedado way, (just to take one out of the thousands), just called up to let us know that her ad about a furnished room in the Real Estate columns of The Constitution had brought her more than enough prospects and found a most satisfactory tenant.

"I got splendid results from my ad and could have rented more rooms—if I had had them," said Miss Failia.

She got these results immediately after her ad appeared.

LOVERS SUICIDE ON LONELY ROAD IN DEATH PACT

Elkins, W. Va., April 12.—Miss Erma L. Frank, 20, of Elkins, and James L. Mauzy, 30, of Parsons, were found dead today in an automobile on a country road four miles from here. The girl had been shot twice through the heart from a revolver and a bullet also had pierced the man's heart.

A revolver with three shells empty was found in the car, also a note signed E. L. and J. L., stating they had agreed to die together, and giving burial instructions.

Miss Frank was a school teacher. Acquaintances said Mauzy had a wife in Parsons. Investigators believed, they said, Mauzy first shot the girl and then turned the weapon on himself.

There's No Excuse For Carelessness

"There's no excuse for carelessness—particularly when some innocent person may suffer as a consequence."

This was the pertinent statement of an Atlanta woman in a letter to The Constitution last week, in which she arranged for issuance to her of a $5,000 Constitution Travel Accident insurance policy.

"The wise person provides against unforeseen emergencies before they happen," she continued. "With the streets and highways unsafe for motorists and pedestrians alike, and with my children dependent on me for their comforts and their education, I'm glad of the opportunity to take advantage of The Constitution's wonderful offer."

The Constitution's $5,000 Travel Accident policy costs only $1 per year in addition to the regular subscription rates of the Daily and Sunday Constitution, and it provides the following sweeping protection features:

$5,000 travel accident death, the policy increasing 10 per cent per year to $7,500 in five years; $2,000 automobile death, the policy increasing 10 per cent per year to $3,000 in five years; $1,000 pedestrian accident death, the policy increasing 10 per cent per year to $1,500 in five years; large sums for permanent injuries and $10 weekly indemnity for total disability for a period of 15 weeks resulting from certain specified accidents.

You cannot equal this protective opportunity in the insurance offer of any southern newspaper. Wait no longer to secure your protection. Phone, write or visit The Constitution's insurance department at once."

Hitting Officer Lands Prisoner In City Hospital

Not satisfied with one fight, H. F. Smith, 28, 134 Ivy street, sought pugilistic honors at police station late Sunday night with disastrous results, and today with be asked to explain his desire for battle before the recorder.

Call Officers R. F. Craig and G. E. Williams were summoned to an apartment at 99 West Peachtree street. Arriving they found Smith engaged in a fistic battle, it is charged, with D. L. Sanders, 29, of 288 Forrest avenue, and J. H. Juhan, 18, of 234 State street.

On the way to the police station Smith took occasion to call Officer Craig everything but a gentleman, according to the police. The blue coat received the abuse in silence.

At the station house Smith, it is said, continued his abuse, despite the warning of Call Officer W. A. Chewning that he "might get into trouble." Finally he reached forward and struck Craig with his fist.

The officer answered with his billy, but missed Smith and hit Call Officer M. B. Johnson. He struck again, this time with more care, and Smith went to the floor.

Charges of disorderly conduct were docketed against the prisoner and his companions. Smith was treated at Grady hospital before going behind the bars.

DEPUTY SHERIFF SHOT BY NEGRO NEAR MACON

Macon, Ga., April 12.—Excitement reigned in the neighborhood of Lizella tonight after the shooting of Earl Mosley, deputy sheriff, in a gun fight with a negro he had been called upon to arrest.

One negro who was wounded, arrived at a local hospital shortly after 11 o'clock, an hour after Mosley was taken there.

According to David Johnson, 26, negro, who was the wounded negro brought to the hospital shortly before 11:30 o'clock, the farmers of the Lizella neighborhood are up in arms, engaged in a hunt for Monroe Fowler and his brother, Tom Fowler, who are said to have shot the deputy. Many shots have been fired, the negro said. He said that he was so badly scared that when a posse of white men tried to stop him, he ran the harder, hid in the attic of his home. MORTUARY

A Word of Comfort.

How barren is the life of him whose gaze is always horizontal! Only he, who dares to look up, sees the glory of the mountain tops and is compelled to climb the heights.

In spite of yourself, your attention has just now been wrenched away from concentration upon worldly accomplishments and enjoyments. While your eyes are lifted, drink in the wonder of the heavenly hope and respond to the appeal of Him who calls you to follow whitehe He leads. He beckons you along the path which shall bring you once again into fellowship with dear ones gone before.
